"Let me see your bracelet, Bobby M.", produces plenty of blushes from the proud owner.

And Romaine has changed her first name even though Harland insists she hasn't.

Bailey High now rates two prize-fighters. (Santa should have brought them boxing gloves.)

If you'll ask me, I might tell you what door and what night gained for Martin a flattened nose.

Each grade produces inseparable twin girls. A glance down the hall will give proof.

I'm tempted to believe that rides on the motorcycle are more appealing to Maude than the owner.

Hollis Haskin's hobby is a scrapbook, while Bobby S's. is pitching shoes in his sleep with a smile. (Wonder what he was dreaming about).

Why is it there were almost as many juniors as sophomores at the ninth grade boys' party?

You can't see the ring on Seroba's finger for the roll of adhesive tape she is sporting.

May the best girl win in the Harold Cooper case.

French Scrapbooks Substitute For Exam

Scrapbooks made by the junior French class from news, clippings, pictures, and drawings relating to France and taking place of mid-term exam are completed and now on exhibit in Mrs. A. H. Farmer's room.

The five selected as best are those of Tommy Etheridge, Bobbie Morgan, Maude Lewis, Josephine Griffin, and Ruth Ruffin.
