My dear Mrs. Gibbs:

Are you tired of the Rhode Island winter--the snow, the sleet, the heating problems? Then make a trip to your book-store or library for a copy of the book I am going to tell you about.

WITH THIS BOOK YOU MAY--

Spend a pleasant and enlightening vacation with Archibald Rutledge in his "Home by the River".

Watch the sunset over the beautiful Santee from the porch of his white-columned South Carolina mansion while he takes you back scores of years with stories of George Washington's and Francis Marion's visits to Rutledge plantation.

Share with him the excitement of restoring the beautiful old house and the gardens, and of searching for family silver buried since Civil War days.

"Home by the River" is illustrated by full-page pictures of the house, river, and the plantation negroes.

Mrs. Gibbs, don't miss this book of many stories--stories of the restoration of an old home, stories of the days of the South's early history, stories of adventure on the Santee River.

TODAY! READ THIS ENTIRELY DIFFERENT BOOK.

Yours for the enjoyment of an entertaining book,

Sarah Morgan Farmer
