

HE SPIES HE SNOOPS Snooping Sam

Could the disgusted expression on Miss Johnson's face at the close of a class period recently be traced to the first civics' test papers of the sophomore girls?

Perhaps James will think twice before throwing his French paper out of the window next time; or was it an excuse to get out?

Is red the color these days or was that just the color of Elton's face when Mrs. Farmer asked him to dust her seat in chapel.

Was it superstition that led one of the senior girls to wear her dress wrong side out to school or was it merely absent mindedness.

Watch out, Romaine! Next time you may get more than black paint on your fender.

Wonder if the rumor is true that Mrs. Lassiter had to put books in Leslie's chair to make him high enough to reach the typewriter?

Is it or isn't it mud on the wind shield of Harold's bus?

Is the art of kicking shoes on the top of the house a new subject for La Verne?
