

Inquisitive Soul

WHAT SUGGESTION WOULD YOU OFFER
MR. WEAVER IN REGARD TO "RUNNING"
THE SCHOOL? (ANS. SECURED UNBEKNOWINGLY)

PATSY LAMM

Would hint that we are not Japs or Germans to be guarded to keep us out of the halls.

PATSY RUTH EATMON

I'd have Mr. Weaver do away with the rule that makes all absent students explain their whereabouts because I don't believe it does any good.

JOYCE BISSETTE

Let us go to chapel at least once or twice a month.

FLORINE NIXON

Use some hickory switches on some of these rowdy boys.

SUE LASSITER

I would have longer lunch and activity periods and would cancel rule regarding unnecessary conversation between boys and girls.

HUBERT EARP

Take in school earlier and turn out earlier.

JOE HIGH

Don't be so strict toward getting to classes on time.

JANICE MEDLIN

I would have activity period as it was last year.

JACQUELINE COLLIE

Less strictness.

MYRTLE BRANTLEY

I should ask Mr. Weaver not to make us have an excuse to go to class when we are late. Just explain to the teacher.

MAE JORDAN

Let people go up town without his escorting them.

BOBBY RAY MEACOMES

Allow the boys to associate with the girls.

NANCY FINCH

Let us stay in the halls at lunch time instead of making us go into our room or outside.

TOMMY ETHERIDGE

Have shorter periods. Eat dinner earlier than we do.

JAMES HASKINS

All boys to wear skirts so that they may talk to the girls.

Who Wants A Pepsi?

"Pepsi Cola hits the spot" seems to be the favorite cry around Bailey high these days.

Every morning a high school student disappears into the lunch room with a mysterious package and comes out empty handed.

Lunch time arrives. Again the mysterious bag and another package is brought forth. The owner disappears to a lonesome spot, and if seen in the next twenty minutes is calmly drinking a pepsi and nibbling on a cake, with special friends sharing the treat.
