The cap of all stacks in originality! Notice Sallie Lou's compact on her arm.

It's better late than never, Ivan. I'm referring to your innocently skipping journalism.

Believe it or not! Mrs. Farmer accepted candy in the place of an excuse. IMAGINE!

One--two--three--four--five--out each student goes one by one as called by Mr. Weaver. A NEW history class formed in Mr. Weaver's office right from under your nose, Miss Johnson?

That bright red flash whence did it come? Must be Miss Langely's red suit!

A test in keeping a resolution will be demonstrated by John Glover in his attempt to quit smoking.

Isn't it wonderful for mother and daughter to be able to exchange clothes! Ask Mrs. Lassiter and Sue.

Roland so seldom goes to study hall the teacher doesn't even recognize him when he does go.

Well! Eltom, Romaine, and Forrest are rather grown babies. I hear they got rattlers and teething rings for Christmas.

Miss Ross certainly does have a way of handling her students while they are playing "Shine". But are you surprised?
