

CALLS SPUR STUDENTS TO SHOW PATRIOTISM

Calls for war needs were wholeheartedly supported by students and faculty of the Bailey school during the first semester.

$8,424.75 was invested in war bonds and stamps.

With one-hundred percent membership, $33 was contributed to the Junior Red Cross Drive.

To the United War Fund Drive the teachers donated $77.

Fifty Christmas boxes were sent to soldiers at Fort Bragg.

About 500 pounds of scrap iron was collected.

A repairing shop for farming machinery was opened in the agriculture building.

Pre-Flight Boys Study Navigation

Solving the win-drift triangle, finding the true course and the compass course are a few things that the Bailey pre-flight boys have to do in order to learn in what direction an aviator must travel to reach his destiny.

When Mr. M.W. Weaver, teacher, asks the boys to solve the above problems, they unfold a large aeronautical chart and with ruler and compass go to work. The purpose of solving the wind-drift triangle is to determine in what direction the pilot must travel to reach the desired place, for instance, it is sometimes necessary to head south-east to get to a town directly east.

This is one of the courses offered to meet the challenging needs of the war.

EIGHTH GRADES WRITE THEMES ABOUT HISTORY

North Carolina history becomes alive as Miss Molba Martin's history students write themes on varied subjects pertaining to the Proprietary, Royal, and Early Statehood periods of the state.

The themes have been made into booklets with attractive covers that portray in designs and pictures the subject discussed within the covers.

A total of 58 themes were written.

Bailey High Loses Substitute Teacher

Bailey school loses a substitute teacher as Mrs. James Murray leaves for Fort Bragg to resume her former position there as hostess.

In addition to substituting, Mrs. Murray taught music at home to Anna Leigh Johnson, Joe Ann Thornton, Ruth Farmer, and Jean Glover, Bailey students.

Mrs. Murray was at Fort Bragg until August, 1943 when she returned home after her husband had been sent overseas. Upon being asked to return to Fort Bragg she stated that she thought it was her patriotic duty to do so.
