

School Paper More Than News Coverage

CONGRATULATIONS!

Of the 153 students in high school only eight are taking journalism. These with the aid of typing II students are endeavoring to publish the Bugle.

To edit any paper requires long hours of extra work and the sacrifice of time and pleasure. That accounts for the small class in journalism and gives evidence that students have not yet learned how to choose between the hard road of learning or the "primrose path of pleasure".

Former journalism students from Bailey who are going to college report that they have had less trouble with college English than those who have not had journalism.

In addition to teaching the fundamentals of grammar, writing technique, and clear expression, journalism develops creative ability, initiative, responsibility, and co-operativeness, or, in other words, trains one in the art of expressing himself and in the character-building requisites.

The school paper is a record of the school's activities, it keeps pupils informed, stimulates interest in contests, advertises the school's work, acts as a mouth organ for the students, and arouses school spirit.

For the community the paper supplies information as to what the school is doing, what it plans to do, and creates interest in the school's activities.

It is no credit to the student body that it wants a paper yet is not willing to share the responsibility of the work required or to surrender a few hours of pleasure. If several would share in the work, there would be no particular burden on anyone, and all, students, school, and community, would benefit.

To Nashville and Red Oak schools that are publishing a paper for the first time the BUGLE staff extends congratulations and best wishes.

Questions of the Month:

What teacher has taught longest at BHS?

Which teachers are alumnae of BHS?

What teacher married a BHS alumnus this summer?

What year did Bailey School add the agricultural department?

When was the present school building erected?
(Answers, pg. 22)

Millard: Poor me! I flunked my history test today.

Rex: What's wrong, "Genius"?

Millard: How does Miss Johnson expect me to answer questions about something that happened before I was born?

SUSIE BABBLES

Susie Makes Her Debu.....

Well, how is each and everyone of ye worthy students after a fine three-months vacation-ragged but right, eh? Have you noticed the so s-m-o-o-t-h tans being displayed around?

WE NOTICE THAT.....

There seems to be an epidemic of black sweaters around the school--but who's complaining? The Jacquard sweaters are also destined for a great popularity....And listen, whoever said "loafers" were going out?? Just take a look around.....By far the most eye catching garment seen yet is the "La-Chaqueta", or Mexican loafer jacket, worn by Miss Johnson.

COMING EVENTS

Things of interest happening in the near future are State Fair, Oct. 14-19, BUGLE Coronation ceremony, Oct. 11, and opening of the basketball season
