

PROJECTOR TO AID CLASSES, INSTRUCTORS

"Seeing is believing" is a proverb that may be used to illustrate the value in class instruction of the movie projector, bought by the PTA.

The projector will be used to supplement class work and to demonstrate some of the best information available. Films on varied subjects may be borrowed from Superintendent L. S. Inscoe's office.

Several short films will impress upon the student more about a country or a particular phase of study than two or three books will imprint; thereby a larger field may be covered in a shorter length of time.

By actually seeing the story of a poem or book in pictures, the methods of doing things demonstrated, and a country, its people, their habits, customs, and dress portrayed, students will add to book material and their own knowledge a second impression gained through the eye.

In the words of our principal, "We remember things we see longer than things we read about".

Failures Exceed A's For First Testing Period

Report-card grades, as a whole, for the first six weeks of school are not up to par with the standard rating, as there were approximately three times as many D's as A's.

On the other hand, attitude and conduct grades were on the upward trend. Everyone realizes, though, that there is still room for improvement in the halls, particular in remembering to quiet one's voice after he enters the building.

A little more budgeting of time, a little more self-control will blot out the failures, improve the conduct, and give all an increased sense of pride.

HEAR YE.....

Here's the 'prize insult to Bailey womanhood a boy was heard to make the remark that he didn't know where the creator of Lena the Hyena got his inspiration but he strongly suspected that he's been visiting Bailey High.

RUMORS ARE FLYING.....

Your reporter has heard that Doris Faye Bisette, second grade, and Lois Ray Pace, eleventh grade, are two of the school's hottest dancers. Doris does the Charleston and Lois Ray, the hula.

ODDS AND ENDS.....

Seen on the grounds---A wonderful loud plaid shirt worn by Rae Bisette..... Oliver Lamm, eighth grade, with his lips smeared with lipstick..... Jackie Edward's new bracelet made of her three medals.

Is This Scene Familiar????

A discussion of wills prevailed in Miss Edith Farmer's general business class.

A thoughtful student asked: After a cat has been willed a large sum of money is it possible for her to will it to her kittens?
