

Behind The Scenes

Carefree and athletic, Mary Grey Wiggs takes quite an interest in children. This is proved by the fact that she is often found caring for Principal M. W. Weaver's two little girls, Sue and Janet, when Mr. and Mrs. Weaver are unable to be at home.

Eight-grader Anne Bunn is especially interested in her personal appearance. We notice this from her well-kept hair and shining complexion.

Betty Blanche Eatmon, a junior, is fond of helping make her home attractive by remodeling and painting furniture for the house and cleaning the grounds about her home.

In order to make extra spending money Janice Bunn works at the cafe on Saturdays and Pansy Rae Bissette, at Johnson's market.

Patsy Lamm and Ruth Farmer assisted at Ed's store during the holiday season.

STUDENTS REMEMBER DRIVER

William Glover, driver of school bus number 3, received a tie as a Christmas gift from the students who ride his bus.

William gave a description of the tie by saying it was "beautifully designed."

COINCIDENTALLY

Did you ever picture the students of Bailey High as a lump sum?

Actually if the students were lying head to toe they would cover a 600 foot strip.

The upstairs hall holds up approximately 11,000 pounds of student weight each school day--this in addition to any furniture.
