

HERE AND NOW

No Class Open To New Student

Results of the hearing TEST given to all school children from the fourth through the twelfth grades revealed that 24 of these pupils need a recheck.

New Year's RESOLUTION. Few people actually keep them. They can be helpful if kept but harmful if made and broken.

To resolve to do better in some ways at the beginning of a new year helps one to overcome faults if he has enough self-control to carry out the resolutions.

Collected from the Christmas Seal SALE was $97.35 with the seventh grade leading.

CORRECTION

In the article Mothers To Give Choir Supper Tomorrow several names of choir members were omitted.

The staff having had this error called to its attention corrects the mistake by adding the left-out names: Jean B. Glover, Nancy Finch, Ruth Farmer, and Al Williams.

Student sponsors for each special duty will be posted on the bulletin boards. The rooms downstairs will find a list on the board at the front of the building; those upstairs will find their list in front of the lunch-room.

It is hoped that after this day's work is done the students will take pride in keeping the school and grounds clean all the time.

FUTURE IMPROVEMENTS

Other improvements advocated for the near future, but that will require the support of the PTA, the Red Cross Council, the Athletic Association, and the county, include patching plaster, cleaning curtains on the stage, establishing a first aid room, filling holes on school ground, repairing the trophy case, trimming trees and shrubbery, installing a toilet in the gym, planning an art gallery for the front entrance of the hall, painting walls light colors to provide more light, converting music room into powder room, building cement drive, putting lights in all rooms, and buying curtains for girls' bathroom.

The staff feels that a beginning can be started now, and when plans are completed, they will add to the comfort and appearance of the building and grounds.

Plans for the general cleanup is in keeping with the Health Program of North Carolina

Finding no welcome in any classroom in high school, a new student gave up his attempts to become enrolled in Bailey High School.

After following Billy Murray around all the morning and having found no welcome in Billy's classes, this student decided to join the 9th grade. Immediately after the lunch bell rang, he followed the 9th graders to their math class. Miss Edith Farmer, thinking him unprepared for her math class, sent him forlornly on his way.

At the end of the period, the boys, accompanied by said student, went to the agriculture building for their next class. There, the same procedure followed. After he was put out, Mr. L. Tapp told the boys that the classroom was no place for dogs.

superschool of journalism. Publications will be criticized, comparisons made, open forums held, and ideas exchanged.

Eight members compose the staff. Plans are for the entire staff and advisers to attend.

On the last day of the convention, ratings of member papers are announced. For the past five years the BUGLE has received first place among schools of 350-750 enrollment.

Since only one staff member has ever seen Washington, plans include a one-day stop over there.
