

HERE AND NOW 'Scrapples' From The Lunchroom

With the weatherman's permission, Cotton Week will be next week. Since the staff did not consult Old Man Weather the first time, he became angry and sent cold and rainy weather, causing Cotton Week to be postponed.

In the honor roll list last month Joyce Brantley's name was omitted. Joyce is in the eleventh grade.

"Attendance has improved except for a few days last week," said Mr. M.W. Weaver, principal. Mr. Weaver stated that the causes of absences of late were mumps, chicken pox, and flu.

Nine awards to be given at commencement exercises have arrived. These medals are for the best-all-round students, citizenship, valedictorian, salutatorian, most athletic boy and girl, journalism, and scholarship.

As its part of the door receipt of the Nash County Basketball Tournament, Bailey High received $153.68. Proceeds from other basketball games throughout the season amounted to $992.18.

Next Thursday night Miss Wilma Lee Joyner will show a movie on health to the P. T. A. Mrs. Howard Wilson's ninth grade girls will give a skit on "Managing your Moods."

This will be the last program for the year, as the final meeting will be devoted entirely to business.

Jr. Red Cross Completes First Aid Room

In completing the conversion of the old music room off stage into a first aid room, the Junior Red Cross Council was assisted by the eleventh grade home economics girls.

CLASS

This class fashioned a dressing table, sanded and covered a divan, and made curtains for the room.

Material for the curtains was donated to the school by the mother of Mrs. Howard Wilson, home economics teacher, and Mrs. J.W. Christian furnished a mirror.

PAINTERS

Dale Johnson, council member, and Earl Earp, helper, painted the room a pale green with paint furnished by the county. Other assistants were Franklin Brown and Jerry Horton.

Needed funds for arranging the room were taken from the general school treasury.

LAST MINUTE WORDS

Mrs. Howard Wilson-----"Be sure to leave your chairs in place."

Mrs. Howard Farmer--"Let's work like a Trojan and get this paper out on time."

Mrs. Laurine Lassiter--"Be sure to practice."

Miss Wilma Johnson---"Wait a minute".....especially when we are trying to get out to the lunch line.

Barbara Farmer

Having received 360 gallons of orange juice from the government, Mrs. K. F. Lewis, school lunchroom supervisor, plans later in the spring to serve it immediately after activity periods. It is believed that the orange juice will restore energy lost during this period.

OTHERS

Other articles received as federal aid besides the 360 gallons of orange juice were 180 pounds of cheese, 162 gallons of tomato juice, 30 gallons of pineapple, and 24 one-hundred-pound bags of Irish potatoes.

POSSIBILITY

There is a possibility that federal aid will soon expire. Those in charge of the lunchroom say that they will have the same quality lunch for the same price as long as it is possible. If the prices are raised, parents will be notified about the change.

Mrs. Lewis states that the lunchroom plans to paint the walls and tables of the cafeteria.

MEMBERS

The members of the Nash County Board of Education while on an inspection tour of the school, ate in the lunchroom and praised the plate served. Asserting that the same lunch would have cost them a dollar in any near-by town, the members of the board paid $1 each for their lunches.

Mrs. Lewis asks for any suggestions for improvement of anything in connection with the lunchroom.
