Different Showers Bring Different Flowers

By Evelyn Poole

During the month of April, we find the saying that "April showers bring May flowers" true. Today's sudden and intermittent showers, bringing in their wake flowers in May, call to mind the "showers"of high school life that produce an array of blossoms in our life's garden.

The shower of long, hard studying, which seems to us now a rain of drudgery, will bring forth the blossom of wisdom. From the showers of thoughtfulness, consideration, and friendliness the good-name flowers will burst forth. The shower of accuracy will bring the blossom of perfection of speech, and perfect speech will likewise bring respect and friendship. Courtesy at school awakens the flower of appreciation.

the storms in weather, and no one can avoid the storms of life, "For whatso-ever a man soweth that shall he also reap." Cheating in school may help the looks of our monthly grades and be thought of as a flower, but this is not a true flower. It fades before it opens.

Yes, April showers sometimes interfere with our ball games, our picnics, the wearing of our special suit, but what gaiety and beauty result from their having been. The same can be equally true of the "showers" faced in high school. They, too, interfere with our pleasures, but they also bring a garden of joy and pride later. Then, paraphasing Loveman, "It is not raining rain to

Schoolin General Impresses Carry Finch, Janitor

Carey Finch, janitor, likes his work and finds the students "considerate" and "well behaved".

When asked about students' behavior and language behind the scenes, he replied, "I haven't seen or heard anything wrong." He observed that the high school students were more considerate about his work. Mrs, J. P. Underwood's and Miss Rachel Bissette's classrooms, according to Carey, are usually the best kept.
