

Eyefuls

Speaking of eyefuls, just take a peep into any of the lockers lining the halls upstairs. They seem to be a combination of art gallery, secret chamber, clothes closet, and book case.

They bulge, they overflow, they tell a whole story of the owner. A mere glimpse reveals chewing gum wrappers, orange peels, baseball suits, coats and caps of unusual descriptions, waste paper, pictures of those swoon croonies, Van Johnson and Peter Lawford, and, buried among all this conglomeration, books.

What a frantic search ensues between classes as the pupils turn the lockers upside-down in search of the book for the next class.

If these lockers are a specimen of the owners' housekeeping, beware boys and girls!

Experience Paves Ways For Nickname

George Washington got his nickname, "Honest George", because of his truthfulness in confessing that he cut down his father's cherry tree. Bobby Lee Finch, Junior, received his nickname, "Goofy", from a true experience, also. Trimming a tree as his father told him, "Goofy" chopped off the limb he was sitting on and fell to the ground with a Bang! Since then Bobby Lee is called "Goofy" by his friends.

Wanted: Home For Orphan SNATCHES

Seen licking a sucker, Mrs. Lassiter was approached by her daughter Sue. Sue merrily tripped towards her mother and took the sucker from her; then she proceeded on her way.

What a good beauty parlor the home economics room makes. There are always a bunch of girls from each grade standing patiently in line gabbing, awaiting their turn for primping.

The library has been designated as the rainy day hangout during lunch hour, particularly for the senior and junior boys.

Bobby Glover, Billy Murray, Sue Lassiter, Billy Horner, Jean Brantley, and Maxine Medlin are usually found waiting until about thirty seconds before the bell to go to the fountain. The bell rings. Down the hall they dash, slip into the classroom stealthily, and sit down out of breath.

Friendliness up and down the hall is being overstepped by a number of students. The girls aren't demanding that the boys show the proper respect toward them.

Romark heard: Bobby Ray Meacomes: "Look at all those bags of potatoes! Um-m-m. Let me slip by or else I'll certainly have to carry up a sack." Students are often stopped to carry up supplies to the lunchroom.

George Johnson Lassiter is soon to become an orphan unless someone comes to his rescue, for his guardians will soon be leaving for their homes.

A glimpse of a tear is seen in Sue Lassiter's eyes when she speaks of the day: "George is so human that it will be next to separating from Jacqueline", declares Sue. (We believe this is advertising propaganda on the part of Sue in hopes that a good home will be found for George)

According to Miss Wilma Johnson, two of George's human qualities are stubbornness, which he shows when she tries to send him home or give him a bath, and jealousy, shown when she pets his playmates.

George spends his time as she does when she is at the dormitory states Sue; but while she is at school, George, child like, averts loneliness by going in search of companionship. As a result, he is most often found visiting with Zip Farmer.

But school closing, George comes bounding, barking, and wagging his tail in greeting to Sue or Miss Johnson. "See, 'Man's best friend,'" they point out.

TEACHER: Where is that noise coming from?

LINZIE M: It must be coming from the boys' loud socks.
