

Visiting The Commercial Department - WITH B. EATMON

General business class began its year's work by studying primitive exchange or barter.

Following this study the class has been observing various kinds of money and unusual specimens, including a new one-half dollar with Booker T. Washington's picture engraved thereon.

Enrollment of students in typing classes drops 30 percent from last year.

This year typing I and II classes have thirty-five students as compared with the forty-nine of last.

For the seniors desiring typing, two periods of second-year typing are open.

There are eighteen first-year typists and seventeen second-year.
