

SENIORS COMPETE FOR COLLEGE SCHOLARSHIPS

Latest Aids To Determine Type Of Room Equipment

More adequate equipment is the factor determining the choice of furnishings for the soon-to-be-completed rooms.

Equipment for the two primary grade rooms will consist of blackboards, essentials needed for library corners, lavatories, and teachers' cabinets.

In addition to plenty of blackboard and bulletin board space, there will be in the English room movable desks, storage cabinets, and a work table extending the length of the rear of the room.

The library, composed of one of the new rooms and the library book stack room, to be located in the space now occupied by the top of the present stairway, will be a combination study hall, reading room, and magazine display room.

BASKETBALL--In answering the question How many times are you asked for use of gym, key, or ball? Mr. M. W. Weaver, principal, replies, "Just count the number of class periods in a school week, the number of nights in a week, excluding Sunday, and multiply by the number of weeks in the basketball season and you'll have the answer."

TELEPHONE--At last Bailey High has a telephone. Several years ago a telephone was installed but had to be taken out because too many social calls were

BHS Write-up Appears In National Magazine

"Citizenship in Action," an article written by Betty Doris Sanders, former editor of the BUGLE, gains national recognition by being published in the October issue of Student Life, a magazine edited by the National Association of Secondary School Principals, in Washington, D. C.

Betty Doris gave in her article an account of the clean-up campaign that was sponsored by the BUGLE at the beginning of the second semester of last year.

Pictures were made of the building before and after the campaign. These pictures appear with the article.

being made. According to Mr. Weaver, the telephone will not be a new means of communication for gossip or the like but will serve the general school use.

KNOTTIEST PROBLEM--"Making ends meet in the lunchroom is the knottiest problem," states Mr. Weaver. For the first month of school the bill was $1700 more than taken in through school lunches.

ANNOUNCEMENTS----Announcements follow a general pattern. The usual types are about bus schedules, school schedules, or lost and found articles.

Evelyn Poole, Jackie Edwards, and Beth Bissette are competing with seniors from various schools for scholarships offered by the Pepsi-Cola Company and the Quiz Kids in conjunction with the American Heritage Foundation. The scholarships offer high school seniors the opportunity of college training.

PEPSI-COLA CONTEST

Chosen as students "likely to make important contributions to human progress," Jackie Edwards and Evelyn Poole will take a two-hour scholastic aptitude test in Bailey High school today. Two seniors from each school in the state are eligible to enter, and the students in each state receiving highest grades in the preliminary test will take a second test, from which the two highest contestants in each of the 48 states will become winners of the Pepsi-Cola Scholarship.

Entering the Quiz Kids scholarship contest by writing an essay on "What America Means To Me" are Beth Bissette and Evelyn Poole.

Students To Star In Play

Billy Murray, senior, and Octavia Beard, junior, are to co-star in a musical comedy, "The Minister's Aunt", to be given Monday night by the Young People's Class of the Bailey Methodist Church in the school auditorium.

The price of admission will be 25 and 35 cents.
