

Behind The Scenes-By Frank Lewis

Who are the biggest eaters in high school? Go to Parker's Barbecue House in Wilson and Mr. Parker will tell you that L. G. Deans and Tommy Perry are. These boys killed the profit on a night's serving by the amount of barbecue and chicken they consumed.

If anyone would like his plant beds picked, let the senior class know. In order for Bobby Perry to play his part in the senior play, the class sent Billy Horner, Bobby Glover, and William Glover to pick a bed for Bobby. After the play Bobby returned home to find the plant bed almost picked.

At last Bailey boys and girls have found a hang-out. If you doubt my word, watch Collie's Shack Shop after school and every evening.

People do funny things, Don't they? While the journalism class was in New York, Ruth Farmer took up the habit of leaving theaters with her shoes in her hand; and Bobby Lee Finch started walking in his sleep.

Talmage Poole, freshman, should understand the old saying "curiosity killed the cat". "Tanky" went down to the Wilson Daily Times' office and asked to go through the press. The person whom Talmage asked said, "Well, son, you damn go through it if you like, but you'll look like a mashed potato when you come out."

Watch the Seniors strut. Why they have more money than they know what to do with!

On the return trip from New York, Millard Morgan, senior, nearly wrecked a cafe. The journalism class had stopped for a bite to eat, and everything was going smoothly until Millard's feet got tangled up and he proceeded to fall, knocking over chairs, tables, bottles, and everything else in his way.
