

Student Returns After Fifteen Years To Complete School

Elizabeth Thompson Joyner, who dropped out of school fifteen years ago, came back in January and joined the senior class to get her diploma.

In order to cover the whole year's work, Elizabeth does her studying at home. She comes once every week to have a check up with her teachers on her four subjects--English, civics, home economics, and general business.

Marriage, Elizabeth says, was her reason for stopping school. She states that coming back has whetted her appetite to continue her schooling beyond high school.

Elizabeth, although she really looks like one of the seniors, has a son, James in the seventh grade.

Among the many changes Elizabeth notices in the school are library and lunch-room improvements and better equipment to work with.

Elizabeth's hobbies are growing flowers and sewing.

Belk-Tyler Offers Scholarship To Nash--Edgecombe Girl

BELK-TYLER'S of Rocky Mount is offering a $100 scholarship to the senior girl who wins out in a contest staged by the store. Each high school in Nash and Edgecombe counties selects from its list of superlatives a contestant.

Each contestant will be assigned a Saturday to model clothes in some one department of the store. In addition she will participate in the Fashion Show sponsored by the store in April.

The Saturday designated for Jean to model should be considered by the students of Bailey as Bailey High day, especially by the seniors. Her classmates and friends are asked to drop in and chat with her, for naturally she will be at her best with them and will make her best appearance before the judges.

The scholarship will be given to the one who is rated the highest on poise, personality, talent, and beauty.

CONGRATULATIONS!
