

Mrs. Tichenor Strives For Better Music

Mrs. Mary T. Tichenor expressed her disappointment in the conduct of her students during Glee Club practice and stated that if the boys didn't improve their behavior there would only be a Girls' Glee Club this year.

Forty-eight instruments for the toy orchestra, which consists of the two third grades, have been ordered and are expected to come in the near future. The instrument money was matched dollar to dollar by the county and school.

This year the P.T.A. agreed to allot up to seventy-five dollars for music equipment.

Journalists Hear Dr. Murphy at Institute

Highlighting the North Carolina Scholastic Press Institute held in Chapel Hill, October 6 and 7, and attended by the journalism class and its advisors was a speech by Dr. Joseph M. Murphy, head of the Columbia Scholastic Press Association.

In order to be a successful writer, Dr. Murphy pointed out, one must have a good grammar foundation. He further stated that until one could write and write effectually he has no place on a school paper.

When writing, Mr. Murphy went on to say, one ought to say to himself, "Will I or will I not be proud of this twenty-five years from now?" One criteria in judging a person, he said, is by the kind of writing he produces.

While discussing the financial end of writing, he pointed out that money was not the all-important item. He reminded his audience that money was the medium of exchange for everything except heaven, happiness, and health. Dr. Murphy further stressed the importance of helping mankind.

Comments from the entire staff indicated all were impressed by Dr. Murphy's speech, not for the journalistic information only, but for the general knowledge helpful in any walk of life.
