

Librarians Pleased With Student Response

When the library opened this year, new regulations--only one person in the library at a time, each person borrowing a book must sign his name on the card, only librarians permitted to replace books on the shelves, and a few others--were setup to aid student librarians in their operation of the library.

The librarians report that the student body is co-operating beautifully in every respect. The librarians say they have had to ask but few students to leave the library because of rudeness or unco-operativeness.

The result is that the library is kept in better order at all times, and the job of librarian is proving a pleasant task.

Generally speaking, the magazines and daily paper in the study hall adjoining the library room are receiving more careful treatment since the students have been requested not to cut out articles for classroom use.

All this co-operation and thoughtfulness proves that the school day is more pleasant for everyone when all fall in line and adhere to any regulation designed for the good of all. Co-operation is always more fun than bucking.

Recipe For Well-Rounded Student

This recipe will make a well-rounded student during one period. And if followed through each period, he will become respected by students and teachers alike.

- 15 minutes - Courtesy.
- 12 minutes - Understanding.
- 20 minutes - Honesty.
- 10 minutes - Character.
- 3 minutes - Wit.

Mix Courtesy and Honesty until no lumps appear. Then pour Understanding and Character until it becomes thick. Add Wit and mix thoroughly with all classrooms and try it for one week. It is guaranteed to satisfy your hunger for popularity. J. McLaughlin (Taken from the Rumbler, the Middlesex High School paper. Editor)

Rays of Sunshine

After Wayne B. Finch, Jr. gave the devotional in chapel, one could hear repeatedly, "Doesn't he have a nice voice! So plain and clear."

John Wells, the agriculture teacher, is to be commended on his generosity for offering a ride to anyone who goes home for lunch.

Blonde-haired and petite, Mary Blanche Stone has been commended for her neatness and ability to get along with everyone.

Julia Hooks has improved in her ability to get up in front of the class without being self-conscious, comments several of her teachers.

Hats off to Shirley Creech for her poise and attractiveness.

Ideal High School Girl

HAIR - Freshly shampooed and arranged to fit features.

NAILS - Moderate length and preferably without polish unless polish is natural shade.

CLOTHING - Matched colors, not too elaborate, but well tailored.

SHOES - Polished and suitable for sports.

JEWELRY - Not spectacular or over done.

MAKE UP - Selected shades to tone in with coloring of complexion, eyes, and wardrobe. Never excessively used.

CHARACTER - Evident at all times, all places.
