

Library Becomes Center of Interest

If, as many teachers and librarians believe, the library should be the center of school interest, then Bailey's library is taking steps to become such a center by the student-appeal efforts.

To emphasize McMurtry's Nature Creed, there is a display of out-of-door scenes posted within the writing of the creed.

Large pictures of Woodrow Wilson, Martha Washington, and George Washington have been hung above the book case used for reference books.

Two flags, memorials from the classes of 1943 and 1945 to the World War II veterans, living and dead, hang on the east wall.

LITERARY MAP

The North Carolina Literary Map gives the names of the N. C. authors and the place of birth. Beneath the map are a number of books by these authors.

POSTERS

A poster inquiring, "Have you read these books?", acts as a reminder to the students to read the books on display in that section of the room.

State Wolfpack Honors Polio Patient

Cathy Stott, a former student of Bailey High, was given the title, "Sweetheart" of the State Wolfpack, Saturday night, February 24.

Cathy, who has been a polio patient at Rex Hospital for more than two years, after being named "Sweetheart" of the State Wolfpack, was interviewed on the program, "Basketball Party Line," over WNAO in Raleigh.

During the half of the State-Georgetown game, Cathy, who was present, was introduced to the spectators.

Music Teachers To Stage Festival April 25

Nash's county-wide music festival is scheduled April 25 in Nashville. Performers will be the glee clubs from the county's eight high schools.

Each glee club will present one or two selections, each selection not to exceed seven minutes. Fifty performers are allowed each glee club.

The Bailey glee club has as its selections Hunter's Horn by Fearis and Lord's Prayer by Malotte.

As a conclusion, the eight high school glee clubs will sing together.

Conduction this last number will be Dr. Hoffman, director of public school music for North Carolina.
