

Janice Earp, Ray Jones Jordan, Jerry Horton, Clifton McKeel, Eldred Perry, Theron Sanders, Roosevelt Warren, and Jacqueline Winstead are due many thoughtful and courteous "thanks" for their promptness and carefulness as school bus drivers.

These students rise earlier in the morning than do other students in order to arrive at school on schedule. Unless something is "ailing" his bus, no driver is more than five minutes late at any time.

Three drivers—Jerry Horton, Clifton McKeel, and Eldred Perry—perform a double duty by making an extra load in the morning and afternoon without extra salary.

In addition to operating their bus, the drivers are required to make daily reports, including such particulars as number of students riding, number of miles traveled, gallons of gasoline used. At the end of the month all these items must be averaged before a driver receives his check of $20.

Much praise is due, too, to the substitute drivers who are generous enough to fill a vacancy when needed.

Mavis Perry

Tommy, a tall handsome boy, is admired by teachers and students alike, for his poise, politeness, pride, and friendliness. With all these character traits, one could well expect a studeous boy and in Tommy's case not be disappointed.

A member of the F.F.A. and serving as F.F.A. reporter three years, Tommy is a very good agriculture student.

Having membership at both the Bailey and Mt. Pleasant M.Y.F. clubs, Tommy is definitely interested in church activities.

Tommy is a fun-loving junior. He enjoys all sports—fishing, hunting, and archery. Besides these many activities Tommy includes studying as a definite interest, since he is usually an honor roll student.

Aside from being a substitute bus driver, Tommy gives plenty of time to the junior activities. He has been class president since his freshman year.

Although agriculture is Tommy's favorite subject, his ambition is to be an airplane pilot or minister.

This determined young man with such an outlook on life is surely expected to succeed.

Lois Thigpen.

Alice Ferrell

Now that Principal Weaver has the services of Alice Ferrell in his office, what would the school do without her! Who would do the many little jobs of answering the telephone, running down the ones who are wanted on the phone, and taking checks to Mrs. Lassiter for her signature?

Besides the tasks, Alice does all of Mr. Weaver's typing, fills out various reports, and keeps the office going while Mr. Weaver is away or teaching a class. Alice, not only performs these daily duties, but also assists any student or teacher who needs her help.

Mr. Weaver gives as his reasons for employing her—"She was the only available person who was acquainted with the work. Alice can carry on my work in the exact way that I would. She is also a very dependable and trustworthy person."

She has been heard to say that she had rather do the type of work she's doing than anything she has ever done.

Alice, a '49 graduate of BHS, has won the friendship and admiration of students and teachers alike in the year she has been here.

Anne Bunn