

It's The Little Things That Count

How would you like to be sneered at, made fun of, shown that you weren't wanted, have a remark of yours repeated in a twisted way so that you wouldn't recognize it, to learn that someone was making unkind remarks about you out of envy?

These are some of the wrongs that are too frequently being observed or heard around school. To make it worse some of the targets are being directed toward the little children who ride buses with the high school students. To cut a little child makes a wound that is long in healing. It leads to the development of an inferior complex that hampers one through life.

In high school it leads to the formation of cliques, always an undesirable condition.

To be one whose word cannot be trusted, whose label is a "gossiper", a "trouble maker", is as bad as being labeled a thief or robber.

If you are guilty of any of these acts, stop a minute and ponder over this truth: As one acts, speaks, or thinks so is that person.

"Much Ado About Nothing"

(With apologies to Shakespeare)

Whatta Sight----

What would your reaction be if confronted by Principal Weaver blowing bubble gum, wearing be-bop clothes with his hair crew cut? Mrs. Farmer, in short skirt, sloppy sweater with bobby socks and loafers? Mr. Dunn in knee pants and cravat, doing the jitterbug? Or even Mrs. Lassiter with a big red ribbon in her long black hair along with dungerees and hanging shirt tail? What would I do? Like any level minded human-----RUN!!!

Expectant Air-----

For weeks now those juniors and seniors have been acting like---well, to say the least, very uncivilized people. Friday night, March 30, should have cured these Ooh! and Ahs! and "look at my hair", "have you seen my new gown?" tunes. Honestly though, it's really an exciting stage, something new for the juniors.

The Groaner-----

Now isn't it just super that the senior class has found hidden talent in Eldred Perry's ability to warble out "Ole' Man River"; watch for him on Class Night.

Have You Seen-----

How matured the present freshman class is compared to our midget sizes when we were just entering high school? What's your secret, freshmen?

Striking Facts-----

How the hall is jammed when the bell rings---How the girls just love to hold those long conversations at that particular time---How three sophomore girls stick together, namely, Jan Perry, Fannie Manning, and Clara Stott--Miss Tomlinson's ability swing (oops! sing).

Rays of Sunshine

Numerous compliments have been paid the ninth grade girls for the originality in their chapel program.

Many have been the complimentary remarks heard relative to the time and efforts expended by the juniors in preparation for the junior-senior banquet, presented March 30.

Barbara Wester says that the present freshmen are the friendliest she has ever met.

Several persons have commented that Ruth Phillips is always willing to help fellow students.

After the junior-senior banquet March 30, the manager of Hotel Cherry remarked that Bailey High School had an unusually well-behaved group of students.
