

The Teen-Ager Speaks ---BY LARUE WINSTEAD

Drive Being Paved

Realizing the understanding a teen-ager needs, I begin a column in the Bugle, The Teen-Ager Speaks.

It is always of interest to teen-agers to hear about the "permissive" method that other teen-agers use.

We've seen through our childish performance and we are willing to take what is dished out to us now and show good sportsmanship. We concentrate on getting the most out of life. We try not to harbor any ulterior motives. We are putting our "best foot forward".

MAKE UP

Do boys like girls that wear make up? That's a question that you often hear discussed between teen-agers. No boy wants to go out with a girl who is caked with make up, although they do think a light touch of powder and a light shade of lipstick shows she cares how she looks.

We should never wear high heels to a party or on any date when all other girls are wearing low heels and socks. Earrings are out of the question in school too. Teen-age girls should stick to their types and dress like a teen-ager.

IDEAL GIRL

I listen to a group of teen-age boys and hear them discussing their "dream girl". Her name is June. She is 16, weighs 105, is 5'2", and her hair is a beautiful blonde, and oh, those beautiful blue eyes! She's easy to get along with, understanding, friendly, talks easily, and has a good sense of humor. We teen-age girls want to be that "certain" girl they're discussing. Wise and courageous is the teen-ager who keeps before her this ideal June.

As the Bailey Bugle goes to press, the circular drive in front of the school is being prepared for paving.

By the time the second edition is ready the paper, no doubt, will report the job completed.
