SOCIAL PLANS

Economists Exchange Christmas Ideas

All future homemakers met earlier this month to discuss ideas for Christmas gifts and decorations. Miss Frances Wilson gave the group ideas for buying gifts and several tips on decorating. Members were free to express personal thoughts about giving and decorating.

Jackie Bragg read the story "Is There A Santa Claus" to the group.

Earlier in the year, the club promised a prize to the member who sold the most Christmas cards. Carolyn Finch sold eleven boxes and received the gift of one dollar during business discussion.

Part of the sophomore class served refreshments to the entire group, after Carolyn Finch showed the girls how to make corsages from nylon hose.

F.H.A. To Entertain Middlesex Chapter

Bailey Future Homemakers are making plans to ask the Middlesex F. H. A. members over for an "old fashioned" social.

The homemakers will meet at the beginning of the new year.

To exchange ideas and make new friends is the purpose of this meeting.

Handbook Nears Completion For F.H.A.

Plans are now complete for the F.H.A. handbook which should be out by the January meeting.

Jan Perry, Romaine Thigpen, Betty Lou Glover, and Paula Horner hope to present the booklet to fellow members before or at the January meeting.

This year the handbook contains the F.H.A. motto, creed, flower, colors, officers, chapter mothers, advisor, programs, and the F.H.A. roll.

Third Year Girls Study Types Of Homes

Study of different types of homes sent the third year girls on a tour of Bailey community to see if they could distinguish the different styles of architecture studied.

Types most interested in were northern colonial, southern colonial, Dutch colonial, English half-timber, bungalow, and the modern home.

"The study of domestic architecture acquainted the girls with something all around them that they never noticed before," says Miss Frances Wilson, home ec. instructor.

Health-Bond
Super-Firm-Mattress

The right angle to real sleeping comfort is the straight line body support the HEALTH BOND mattress gives you.

This super-firm mattress prevents muscles from kinking and knotting up as they will do on a mattress that is too soft or all-sagged out.
