

Principal's Column----- M. W. Weaver

Banquet Date

One day last week an air-mail letter came to the office requesting the record of a student who had been in school up until 1939. This person was being considered for a job. Not knowing the former student, I had to get all my information from the files. You can imagine my dismay when the records showed that this person dropped out of school in the eighth grade without having a subject rating recorded. That was the record and that was the information which had to be sent. Did he get the job? I do not know. My guess would be that he did not if it was a job requiring success in high school. Another letter came last week requesting information about one of our graduates of a few years back who is getting her file set up for prospective employers to see. This student has a good high school record and was given a high rating on character traits, such as personality, honesty, trustworthiness, initiative, etc. Which type record do you want filed behind your name? Who will determine what kind of record goes into your folder? You will. What are you doing about it?

Let me call to your mind again what has been said on numerous occasions: Honesty and truthfulness are the best policy. When a person so acts and speaks that his neighbors cannot trust him nor believe him, he has gotten himself into a very unfavorable situation. Do not take things, big or little, that do not belong to you. Avoid situations that might cause you to be untruthful. If, however, you find yourself in such a situation, come out with the truth anyway. It pays in the end.
