

Washington Trip Comes As Reward To Bugle Staff

Visiting historical estates and churches, government buildings, memorials, theatres, department stores, a supper club and other points of interest were the activities of the journalism staff, two advisors, and two drivers while in Washington, D. C.

Pohick Church, the church George Washington attended, was the first stop made. From there, the group went to Mount Vernon, Washington's home. After a tour of the grounds, the class left for the Houston Hotel. Thursday night dinner was at the S & W Cafeteria. After dinner the class attended Lowe's Capitol Theatre for a stage show and movie.

SENATE VISIT INTERESTING

Friday morning the staff left for the Capitol. There, autographs and a handshake from Senator Willis Smith were acquired. The Senate chambers were visited, Senator Clyde Hoey's office, and the House of Representatives in session. Lunch was in the Capitol Cafeteria.

At the Smithsonian Institute the group divided in order to view the different sections.

A tour of the Bureau of Printing and Engraving revealed the processes of making money from the time it enters the press until it comes out in bills and notes.

Actual case investigations, methods of catching spies, and a spy's way of sending secret messages, were some of the phases of F. B. I. work explained to the staff at the F. B. I. Building.

Thursday evening the class visited the Library of Congress, famed as one of the most beautiful buildings in Washington.

On Saturday the group revisited the Capitol for a more detailed guided tour.

The newly decorated White House was the next stop. Here the Blue Room, Green Room, Red Room, Gold Room, and Reception Hall were open to the public.

Next on the agenda was a tour of the Corcoran Art Gallery. The staff viewed famous portraits, murals, and other works of art.

PAN AMERICAN BUILDING

A visit to the Pan American Building established the fact that there was an organization of the Western Continent working for Peace. In addition to its historical significance, the guide pointed out certain other facts relative to the famous building: black marble columns, four of the twelve in United States, banana trees, date palm trees, the coffee tree, and certain specimens of tropical trees and plants, and the Mexican exhibit.

Saturday afternoon included a guided tour of the Washington National Cathedral. A number of separate chapels were visited. Much of the building is still under construction.

After the Cathedral visit, the group drove down Embassy Road, the homes of the Ambassadors living in Washington.

TOUR OF GARFINCKEL

The next stop was Garfinckel's Department Store, one of the largest in Washington. A guided tour was provided for the class. Then the class went to Murphy's Five and Dime to do souvenir hunting.

Dinner at the Latus Supper Club was an added feature of the itinerary made possible by the men in the group.

Sunday morning, before leaving Washington, there remained the Jefferson, Lincoln, and Washington Memorials and Arlington to visit.
