

Odds 'n Ends -D. JOYNER

I've always heard that seeing is believing, and I've really seen it! Believe it or not several of the high school boys-- RUFUS BEARD, WESLEY WINSTEAD, and others had rather stand and hold their lunches while waiting for a seat at the back table than eat with the high school girls! What's the matter, boys?

FRIGY LILES just loves her wiener-less hot dogs. She gets all the trimmings but no wiener.

Some of the high school girls have been doing substitute teaching this past month while the elementary teachers attended meetings. These girls were JACKIE BRAGG, ANN JOHNSON, SHIRLEY WILLIAMS, JANICE EDWARDS, MAGALINE WILLIAMS, CAROLYN FINCH, and PAULA HORNLER.

How do you like the holidays we are having lately? Just grand, aren't they? Say, don't forget that December 19-30 is a CHRISTMAS holiday.

Have you bought your school emblem or school daze memory book from a member of the journalism class yet? They're only 25¢ each!

In case any of the "small fry" are trying to read this column my name is Doris not Barbara or Dorothy!! I can understand how someone could mistakenly call me Dorothy, but--- Barbara, never.

Did you know that eighth-grade CURTIS MOORE'S greatest ambition is to be a be-bop!

Color Scheme Brightens New Building

Playing an important part in the beauty of the new cafeteria and home economics building is the color scheme of soft, bright colors selected by James B. Hoyle, paint expert from Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company.

The cafeteria has a combination of three colors. Three walls are light green with a rust dado. The remaining wall is sunny yellow.

In contrast with the all white kitchen is the light blue pantry.

Robin Hood green and light green are the colors used in the lobby with a cream-tan finish in the two restrooms.

Three of the home economics department walls are tinted with light green; the remaining wall is dark green.

The powder room for the cafeteria workers is pink. The bathroom in the home ec-department is grey. All ceilings in the entire building are covered with cream celotex.
