

How We Observe American Ed. Week

In Mrs. Sarah S. May's room we have stressed book reading and book reports.

Each pupil has reported on at least one book—some as many as ten—or a total of 55 this week. Some of the best written reports were put on the bulletin board to interest others.

We also put the covers of some of our most interesting books on the bulletin board.

We will draw pictures to illustrate some of our books and also make posters.

We are enjoying our study of interesting characters from our favorite books. We like to observe Book Week.

BY ROBERT BROWN---GRADE 6.

Elem. Hi-Lites

Curtis Moore and Richard Privette, eighth graders, drew and colored the Thanksgiving picture on the blackboard in the lunchroom. The boys have also been doing art work for Mrs. S.S. May's fifth and sixth graders.

One hundred-seventy two library books have been ordered by the elementary teachers at the cost of $238.64.

Miss Emogene Turner, seventh and eighth grade teacher, will become Mrs. Harvey Evans, Jr. sometime during the Christmas holidays.

In connection with their history study Miss Turner's class is making log cabins and colonial costumes for dolls.

Room Receives Change In Appearance

Brain + brawn = a better class room is proved by Miss Emogene Turner's seventh and eighth graders by the improved desks and artistic work portrayed in the room.

Students in the room removed old unneeded desks and put bottoms in some of the other desks that were used.

Several pictures portraying Thanksgiving are displayed on the bulletin boards. On one of the bulletin boards is a large turkey, which was drawn and colored by students.

CLASS BEGINS WRITING

Creative writing in the class room is being encouraged by Miss Alice Hardy, third grade teacher.

The class is keeping Thanksgiving by drawing Pilgrim men and women and writing original stories and poems.

LOYAL FRIENDS
Do you like to see two loyal friends? Look for PAULA HORNER and BILLIE FAYE PERRY.

For Service That

WE

- Change oil
- Wash
- Grease

at WELL'S
Service Station
Bailey, N.C.

WHY WAIT?

Do Your CHRISTMAS Shopping Now!

We Have  of All Kinds

LAMM'S DEPARTMENT STORE
Bailey, N.C.