

Principal Pleads For Students to Graduate

For the high school in particular, the chapel program conducted last week by PRINCIPAL M. W. WEAVER was a warning against dropping out of school and a challenge for continuing one's education.

LACK OF DIPLOMA

Furthermore, he declared that failure to obtain a job sometimes results from the lack of a high school diploma or for not taking the right subjects.

"School may not matter to you right now, but it will when you are on your own," states PRINCIPAL WEAVER.

EXAMPLES

He supported his contention by citing examples of requests coming his way this month relative to students' records and of regrets expressed by students who now wish they had continued in school, because they have had offers that couldn't be met as a result of no high school diploma.

"Our National and State Leaders" is a patriotic bulletin that "brightens up" the math classroom.

Attendance Warrants New Teacher

Growing attendance may mean that Bailey will get its anticipated extra teacher next year, providing the absentees are kept down, states Principal M. W. Weaver.

In this connection the principal stressed that parents keep their children in school.

Class Witnesses Inauguration

January 8, the U. S. history class, under the guidance of MISS IDALIA OGLESBY, attended the inauguration of GOVERNOR WILLIAM B. UMSTEAD, at the Memorial Auditorium.

The students watched the parade near the auditorium, saw GOVERNOR UMSTEAD inaugurated, and listened to his address.

After the inauguration, the students again saw the parade.

The class ate lunch at various places and immediately came back to school in time to ride home on the buses.

"To let the students have the experience of seeing an inauguration, was the main purpose of the trip," states Miss Oglesby.

Mrs. W. B. Finch Sr., R. W. Jones, Miss Oglesby, and student drivers furnished transportation for the forty-one pupils.

WHICH IS WORSE?

Peggy: "What is worse than having an inferiority complex?"

Ann: "A superiority complex!"

EXCELLENT!
