

Reading Ideas In Step With Theme Of Spring

The library had its Easter parade too. Paper dolls, wearing their Easter bonnets and dressed in book covers, paraded across the bulletin board, covered in pastel spring colors.

SLOGAN

At the first of the month, as a general hint to students in regard to their reading, MISS IDALIA OGLESBY, the librarian, demonstrated the slogan, "Don't Get Stuck--Read Only The Best In Books", by placing on the bulletin board a prickly cactus to illustrate the "Don't Get Stuck" idea and book covers to portray "The Best In Books".

A few books listed were Penrod by Booth Tarkington; A Lantern In Her Hand, Bess Aldrich; Green Grass of Wyoming, Mary O'Hara.

The Good Earth by Pearl S. Buck; The Return of The Native, Thomas Hardy; and While The Angels Sing by Gladys Easty Carroll.

A third bulletin board continued to bring out the spring theme by inviting someone "To Take Me Out To The Ball Game." Books relative to baseball were depicted.

JRS. HOLD DEVOTION

To help them start the day in the right spirit, the juniors spend a few minutes of their time every morning in holding devotional exercises. Their devotion usually consists of scripture reading, a poem or short story, and a prayer.

44 Beginners Report For Pre-School Clinic

Apparently Bailey's enrollment for next year will be equivalent to this year's as the 44 beginners reporting for the Pre-School Clinic, March 27, is practically the same number as those enrolled last fall, reports Principal M. W. WEAVER.

A total of 44 children were present for the Pre-School Clinic. Five others that were listed failed to come.

Each child's weight, height, and disease history were checked, and smallpox vaccination was given to those who hadn't received it by their family doctor.
