Credits Await Classes

Advanced credits and awards are in store for the sophomore, junior and senior members as soon as they complete their projects, states Boss Wells. These projects are a summary of last year's work.

A crop and a livestock project must be fully completed in order to gain the Chapter Farmer Degree.

Department Stresses Safety Regulation

This month, safety in the use of equipment is stressed in the farm shop program, declares Boss.

The proper operation of power tools is very similar to proper use of power equipment at home. All danger areas in the use of proper guards is fully stressed, Boss said.

The boys are learning the need for having equipment with sharpened blades and how to use them in the proper working conditions.

A famous expression, "Familiarity breeds contempt," holds true in the use of all power equipment, with evidence shown not only in shop but also at home in the operation of tractors and other equipment, Boss further added.

Eats, Business Combined

Bailey's young farmers were served by Parkers, Monday night at their meeting in Bailey.

According to adviser Wells, the purpose of the meeting was to discuss pigs and their merit as human food.

Shavings

New pins and guards have been purchased for the chapter officers by the chapter members.

After making a study of Rex Vick's hogs, the boys in his class considered him the champion hograiser of the 10th grade group.

Bissette Tops In Corn

Again this year Lewis Bissette is recognized as the top corn producer in the Bailey Chapter, Boss Wells reveals.

Lewis won an award last year for having the most bushels of corn per acre in the Nash-Edgecombe district.

Newton Glover and Marshall High say they practically lost the taste for barbecued pig during the Thanksgiving Holidays.
