

Today's Future Farmer

Tomorrow's Successful Farmer

Makes

SHAVINGS

Marshall High, Billy Liles, Danny and Newton Glover have received their Chapter Farmer Degree pins.

Billy Glover and Webbie Jordan are actually making a table in the shop.

Classes have begun making plans for their project programs for the coming spring and summer sessions.

Both air compressors are broken, and until they are repaired, the boys will have to varnish cedar chests some other way.

Beginning today, the 9th grade section of the FFA Chapter is scheduled to hold meetings every other Friday, under the supervision of Brown and Bryant.

Corney Boykin and Doug-Brown, with a little assistance, have completed a bookcase for shop use.

West Edgcombe, with Ben-venue runner-up, was the winner in the seed judging contest at the Watson Seed Farm in Rocky Mount.

Johnson Cotton Company rang in the new year by giving the shop calendars.

Brown, Bryant Replace Former Teachers

Ed Brown, of Bethel, and Herbert Bryant, of Coopers school, are the new practice teachers who have come to replace Baxter Dean and Glenn Byrd, states Ross Wells.

Their job is to teach the ninth grade and possibly some of the tenth, Wells further adds.

On February 15 they are scheduled to hold a shop contest for all eligible ninth and tenth graders in identifying tools and shop supplies.

Community contacts with the farmers is another undertaking for Brown and Bryant. These visits will be made according to schedule, says Ross.

Perry Meets Vets;

Wells Attends Meeting

While Willard Perry was meeting his veterans in shop, Monday, John Wells was attending a Nash-Edgecombe advisers' meeting in Nashville.

Perry talked to his group on "Home Beautification," and Wells gave ear to the guest speaker, a soil conservationist, who discussed fish ponds and their care.

Are You
Planning To Build A
New Home?

See Us For All Your Building Materials.

J.W. STONE LUMBER CO.

Bailey, North Carolina