Belk's Presents Styles For Spring

New spring styles in dresses, sportswear, and yard goods, displaying new fibers, fabrics, and blends, were the main attractions in the Fashion Show given at the last F.H.A. meeting, with Joan Brannon acting as chairman of the program committee.

Mrs. Irene Boykin, head of women's clothing department; Mrs. Nannie Taylor, head of the yard goods department; and H. M. Jeffreys, manager of Belk-Tylers in Wilson, were in charge of the Fashion Show.

MODELS

Serving as models for Mrs. Boykin were Doris Johnson, Amy Lou Horton, Ann Earp, Vivian Glover, Louise Davis, Sylvia Glover, and Luverder Peele.

The styles included a nylon washable topper, a sheath dress, a faille coat dress or duster, a linen and a dacron suit, a crepe and a princess style cotton dress.

MATERIALS

Other designs were silk and orlon skirts, nylon and cotton blouses, and nylon and orlon sweaters.

Mrs. Taylor presented the girls with a few facts about the material she had on display and the prices per yard.

For the opportunity to stage a Fashion show here in the school at the F. H. A. meeting, Belk's gave Miss Wilson a nylon blouse as a token of appreciation.

BRIEFS

Rev. Frank Zedick, Baptist Minister, talked to the third year class on "Child Training."

The second period sophomore more girls had a chicken supper at Ed Williams' pond last week.

The last period sophomore girls went to Parkers last week for a barbecue supper.

Adviser Receives State Honor

Miss Frances Wilson, Bailey adviser, having been elected as one of the eight district advisers in North Carolina, will be installed at the State FHA Rally in Raleigh, April 3. Approximately seventeen delegates from the Bailey Chapter plan to attend this convention.

Dr. Bill Martin, Jr., famous storyteller, will be present for the program to tell the girls some of his stories.

During the afternoon State Homemaker Degrees will be conferred and a dramatization entitled "So Live In Faith" will be presented to the group.
