

Fashion And Fads ----- VIVIAN GLOVER

Only a brief sketch of the fashion show at the last FHA meeting was written up. Let's do it justice and summarize the affair.

From all reports the fashion show given by Belk-Tylers in Wilson went over with a bang. After seeing their collection of ready-to-wear garments and piece goods, one really has an idea of the coming trends this spring.

One of the most outstanding dresses was an empire sheath dress of navy faille. Louise Davis, who modeled the dress, described it as "a darling creation and perfect for Easter." Under its short jacket there was a waist of blue polka dots on white. "It was perfectly beautiful," commented the girls.

The empire dress was also shown in navy crepe and printed linen. The latter was styled with last year's mandarin collar; but was still in keeping with this season's trends.

Sylvia Glover had the pleasure of showing a dacron suit. Dacron is said to be even better than nylon. It's hard to believe but after seeing the one from Belks it can easily be realized.

HONORS

The first year home ec. girls have made tailored blouses of cotton material and skirts to match. Having seen some of the work the girls did, I would say that several will eventually make fine seamstresses.

Pittsburgh
Paints

WILSON

For Your Spring

Slippers
And Sandals

Visit

Medford & Stott

Bailey, N. C.

Grumleacher
Artist Supplies

Venetian Blinds

All Found
At

Bridgers Paint
&
Wallpaper Co.

NORTH CAROLINA