

Principal Reporting

M. W. WEAVER

Another school year is almost over. Soon graduation day for thirty-three seniors will be here. This event will be an important milestone in the life of each one of you. As you look back over your twelve years of school work, it is our sincere hope that you feel that you have gotten as much from it as you could, that you did as good work as you are capable of doing.

To each one of you my hearty congratulations and best wishes for a prosperous, happy and useful life. May the training received here stand you in good stead in all your worthwhile undertakings.

DECREASE IN ENROLLMENT

School membership in the district is causing concern. The number of children attending Bailey has dropped from 590 the first month to 541 at the end of the eighth month. This is a drop of 49 students. In the grades, 67 have dropped out or moved away, and 23 have left in the high school, making a total of 90. To take their places, 35 pupils have come in for the grades and 4 in the high school. This gives us a loss of 32 children in the grades. That is where it really hurts.

EXPRESSED APPRECIATION

To all of you teachers, students, and patrons, I give my sincere thanks for all that you have done to make this school year a success. The big things that you do are important

Rehearsal Under Way For Class Night

"The Future Train," play-pageant for class night, is now in full swing with rehearsals of cast, according to Mrs. Howard Farmer, director of the production.

The play, sponsored by the seniors, is scheduled for presentation Friday evening, May 14.

Assisting Mrs. Farmer in the production is Mrs. Helen P. Murray, public school music director.

In theory, as the title suggests, members of the graduating class are getting ready to catch the train into the future. Track signs point the way to business, Army, college, marriage, and other professions.

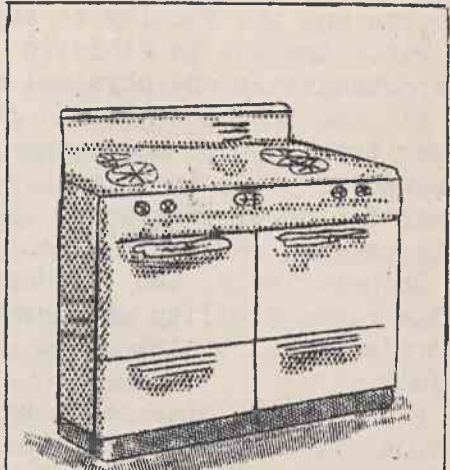

in getting a job done, but quite often the little things are appreciated almost as much and are almost as important. The little courtesies, the considerations given in time of stress, the continual trying to do the right things, trying to be in the right place at the right time all add up to a successful school year.

A happy summer vacation to each of you.
