

The Extras Educate Too

Appearing elsewhere in this issue is a summary of the school's improvements this year and the scholastic benefits expected to result from these additions.

Viewing the school's gains from another angle, the Bugle would like to point out a few other phases of training, not derived from a book or class period, that have had their educational value too.

Participation in chapel programs, in glee club activities, in speaking contests, in staging plays develops poise and the ability to appear before the public.

Participation in athletic activities gives training in sportsmanship and physical development.

All the training gained from publishing the school paper totals up to accepting responsibility, developing a sense of pride in doing a job well, having an eye and an ear for news, expressing clearly one's thoughts, and interpreting news intelligently.

Cooperatively, the students and faculty have accepted the responsibility of four banquets this year, adding to one's social training and ability to direct a public affair.

A few of the students have had the opportunity to broaden their knowledge of their country and its other students and gain the experience of travel by attending the Press Convention in New York.

The visit of the Turkish President and his official party to the school gave a lesson in the dignity and respect one nation accords another and the realization that all peoples, regardless of nationality, are basically the same.

Such activities, if not done in excess, will enrich the student's knowledge above and beyond the three R's and fit him for life's responsibilities as a citizen.

Editor, The Bailey Bugle :

As scribe and assistant scoutmaster of the Boy Scout troop 12 here in Bailey please allow me to express appreciation, on behalf of the troop, for the fine article lauding our reorganization and expansion, which appeared in the April issue of the Bugle.

However, after reading the article over twice, I see that you have accidentally omitted the name of one of the "scoutingest" scouts we have in the troop---little Bill Boykin. Frankly, Bill hasn't mentioned the omission to me, but that boy seems to be mighty proud to be in the greatest organization for boys in the world, and I think he'd want all Bailey to know it.

Bill is now a tenderfoot, going on to second class. Thank you.

Sincerely yours,
Wayne Lamm

BY CAROLYN FINCH

The juniors and Miss Oglesby, the sponsor, for the banquet.

The seniors for dedicating their last chapel program to their parents.

Louise Davis for helping type news articles for the Bugle several months this year.

Wayne Lamm for his assistance with the drawings and printing in the Senior Section.

The seniors who do not have to take exams.

Mr. Weaver for allowing the seniors to have a senior privilege week.

The seniors for having the most parents out to P. T. A.

BAILEY BUGLE
Volume 15, Number 7
Bailey, N. C.
May, 1954
Published monthly by Journalism Class
Commercial Department
10¢ per copy

EDITOR: - - - PEGGY LILES
STAFF: Marlene Eatmon,
Carolyn Finch, Stella Jones
Shelby Eatmon, Betty Lou
Brown, Christine Fowler
TYPIST: Ann Medlin, Amy
Lou Horton
ADVISERS: Farmer-Lassiter