

Students Reveal Interest In Work

Remarks of students indicate that class work is "more interesting" than earlier in the term.

In the field of English the seniors are studying MACBETH. They are dramatizing scenes from the play, reading additional plays by Shakespeare, portraying scenes by poster work, making word posters, and writing themes.

BIOGRAPHY

The juniors are studying biography, reading biographies, and learning to outline.

Shakespeare is the center of interest for the sophomores also. They are studying JULIUS CAESAR, reciting lines, and writing short themes. They are about ready for short stories.

Basic grammar is consuming the freshman's time.

DEMONSTRATIONS

In the science department demonstrations prove "most interesting" to the students. A few of the principles and instruments used in these demonstrations are a Model dash of two-engine airplane, Watt's governor, vacuum pump, Cartesian diver, capillary action, barometer, siphon, falling bodies, center of gravity, gyroscope, hydro-meter, and atomizer.

New Schedule Fosters Better Chapel Programs

For the benefit of Mrs. Helen Murray's music program, the school now schedules bimonthly chapel programs. The teachers may exchange program dates if necessary.

In the past few years the chapel programs were presented once weekly. This frequent demand of Mrs. Murray's time was found to interfere with the public school music program.

Teachers say that the bimonthly schedule gives each class more time for practice and Mrs. Murray more time for her music.

Already there have been, according to the students and faculty, several "impressive" programs. Among these is the special

Eight per cent of the student body averaged being absent the second month. At the present rate of absentees, the principal asserts, "We will not gain a teacher."

He further stresses, "Parents, send your children to school unless you have a very good reason to keep them out. They get behind in their class work, and it hurts our school record. If everyone would work together so each class could get at least 90% attendance, this would help our possibilities of getting a new teacher."

AVERAGE ATTENDANCE

The records reveal that the percentage of attendance for the grades for the second month was 91%. The high school percentage of attendance for the same period was 93%. This makes an average of 92% of attendance for the entire school and 8% of absentees.

The girls' attendance record was higher than the boys'.

Rooms with 95% or above attendance are:
