

Juniors Assume Task Of Publishing Two Issues Of Bugle

Junior English classes, after gaining experience in news writing, pleaded for a rebirth of the Bugle. It was agreed by their teacher and principal that they might publish two issues.

As a result of only five students' registering for journalism, the Bugle was abolished for the school year '55-'56. "A distaste for nine months of hard work and a lack of interest proved to be the reason," say former staff members.

During the year the junior English classes kept the school news before the public by having articles published in the daily newspapers coming to Bailey.

This project created an interest on the part of the juniors to begin publishing the Bugle again. It was decided that two issues of the Bugle would be published. There would be an April and a May issue. The April issue is covering the news of the school year up to the present; the May issue will be mainly the commencement edition.

Accidents Demand Student Carefulness

Pointing out a total of 30 accidents recorded for the first six months of the school's operation, Principal M. W. Weaver of Bailey urges the students to be more careful. According to Weaver, there are 571 insureds, paying a total of $571. Already accident claims have amounted to $685.50 or $114.50 over the amount paid in, he says. Weaver declares, "If we don't become more careful and cut out some of the accidents around school, I am afraid that our insurance rates are going up."

Open House Exhibits School At Work

Preparations for displays of the year's work by the Bailey High School teachers and students for Open House on Thursday night, March 8, "were rewarded with the high appraisal" of the parents and neighbors from the surrounding community, announced Principal, M. W. Weaver, on the following morning.

Annually the PTA meeting in March is designated as Open House for parents and friends interested in getting an idea of the work covered by the students during the year.

SHOW CLASS WORK

Projects, individual and group, art work, individual samples of class work, and class activities were on display. In every room teachers, and in many cases assistant students, were available to explain any phase of the exhibited work, to answer any questions, or in case of the teacher, discuss any problems the parents might have in mind.

GROUP MEETS FIRST

The PTA met first in the auditorium for discussion and settlement of any business that needed attention
XXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXX

SPECIAL EVENTS

- Today Bailey vs R. Ridge
- April 7 FHA State Rally
- April 12 PTA Meeting
- April 20 1st Music Recital
- ? ?? Jr.--Sr. Banquet
- May 9 Federation Banquet
- May 11 2nd Music Recital
- May 11 2nd Bugle Issue

XXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXX
and to hear a concert by the school band.

GUESTS SERVED

Following the program of the band, everyone present accepted invitations to visit all the classrooms.

Concluding the evening's Open House, the hospitality chairman, Mrs. Elton Horton, and her committee served refreshments in the home economics building.