

Staff Attends Two Press Institutes

Ten of the 17 members of the journalism class and one adviser represented the Bailey BUGLE at the Scholastic Press meetings at East Carolina College and the University of North Carolina this month.

Those attending the meeting at ECC were PEGGY BRASWELL, BARBARA BOYKIN, and KEITH GLOVER. The BUGLE won a plaque for the best mimeographed paper there.

PRESENTATION

It was announced by the Press officials that the plaque would later be presented at a Bailey school assembly.

Staff members going to UNC were SUE WEAVER, BETH HARRIS, SUE BISSETTE, KAYE WIGGS, CELIA MAY, ALICE R. ISSETTE, and JEWEL WHITLEY.

While there, the students were divided into groups of two to attend the various classes.

VISITS EXHIBITS

During their lunch period the group visited the North Carolina rooms in the University library.

Most reports from those attending the University Institute have been that "helpful points were gained" and the "best" program of the day was a panel discussion presented on "How To Have A Prize Winning Paper" by the Central High School representatives from Charlotte.

Miss Edith Farmer's first year algebra class has at least one person out of every home room in high school.

Patrol Continues

For the second year, Bailey High School has a safety patrol.

The patrol is made up of grammar grade boys--Bill Boykin, Bob Johnson, R. S. Harrison, David Ruffin, and Charles Hathaway.

Stoptlights in front of the school, at Bissette's Texaco Center, and at Jasper Finch's are patrolled. The boys patrol the signal lights each afternoon from 3:15 until most of the students have passed on their way home.

"The purpose of having these patrolled is to get Bailey students into the habit of practicing safety," says the Principal.
