

Principal Reporting

-M. W. Weaver

I read a newspaper column a few days ago in which a person had complimented a painter for doing an outstanding job and was interested in his comment.

"I learned to do a good job almost against my will," he said. "When I was 17, I went to work for an old fellow who kept making me do a job over until I got it right.

"I used to think he was a crank because he wouldn't let me get by with a job that wasn't done as he knew it should be.

"I'll always be grateful to him for pounding it into my head that the only way to take pride in a job is to do it well enough that you are satisfied with it yourself."

The columnist stated that it was a lucky person who had someone to teach that lesson--a parent, a teacher, or, even later, an employer.

My comment would be, "Be satisfied with nothing less than your best."

A rather unusual situation presents itself when three teachers have to be replaced at midterm. Such is our experience this year. The school would like to say "Thank you" to Mrs. Hagwood, Mrs. Evans, and to Mr. Westall. It has been a pleasure working with you, and we wish for you the very best of luck.

NEW TEACHERS

To our new teachers--Mrs. Massengill, Miss Stott, and Mr. Horne--we welcome you. We are indeed fortunate to have been able to get you to work in our school. We are proud of what it does and for what it stands. We know that you will be valuable additions to our faculty.

They Are Entertaining The Deers

Several years ago, Nash County commissioner Mike Griffin, decided to raise deer for a pass time.

For a few years, Mr. Griffin kept the deer in a friend's pasture. Recently, however, he had one of his own built especially for these animals.

At first he had only two or three deer; today he has a total of eight.

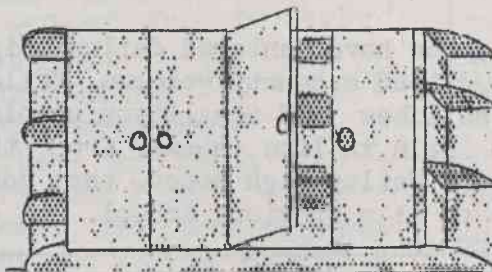

Unlike Santa's troop all of the deer do not have names, but the oldest of the present group is called Lula Belle.

The pasture land for the deer has been praised by a group of Wildlife Agents, as "one of the best and most well-kept and managed in the state."

Food for the animals is no problem at all Griffin affirms, because the deer eat cigarettes, crackers, corn, different kinds of green vegetables, and a miscellany of other items, some intended to be eaten and some not. They chew chewing gum and bubble gum until swallowed. J. Horton
