

It's In Their Blood

To me it seems as though popularity, leadership ability, or whatever you may call it must run in the family, because nearly all class officers who have a brother or sister in high school find that brother or sister a class officer also.

POPULAR ONES

WELLS BROTHERS

If you have anything at all to do with BHS, you probably know the Wells brothers, James and Dale, seniors but not twins, and C. V., a freshman.

Neither of these boys may be the most popular boy in school, but I think I am safe in saying that they are the most popular brothers at BHS.

James is senior class president, FFA president, driver for the activity bus when used for basketball games, and for bus number 136, the largest school bus at Bailey. In addition he has a letter and a star for his ability as a baseball pitcher.

Senior class treasurer and FFA secretary is Dale, who is also a letterman in baseball.

C. V., a freshman, hasn't had time to acquire all the honors coming his brothers' ways, but as class historian he reveals some of that inherited blood also.

In the grammar grades, Kenneth Wells, who is known as Shorty, is following fast in brother James's steps as a baseball pitcher. We feel sure that he'll make news for Bailey in the future.

TEACHER HOPES INCREASE

"If BHS students will get on the ball and come to school, Bailey will get its additional teacher," states M. W. Weaver, principal, at the end of the fifth month.
