SENIOR CHOSEN GIRLS' STATE

One lovely Monday morning in June, 1964, a happy, excited and nervous Junior left Bailey to go to Greensboro for one week. She did not know what was in store for her as she said good-bye to her family and neither did she know about the friends she would make and the experiences she would have. Upon arriving at the campus of the University of North Carolina at Greensboro for the 25th Annual Girls' State, this girl found it easy to adjust to her new surroundings and the new people she saw. Overcoming her nervousness, she soon began to make new friends.

PURPOSE

Her entire week was spent with the overall purpose of getting to know more about the government of the United States and North Carolina. Lectures, discussions groups and even the formation of political groups were used to obtain this purpose. The three hundred girls were divided into two parties, six cities, and only one state. Each city had a mayor and a town council. The cities functioned just as any ordinary city would in America, except on a smaller scale.

At the end of the week a governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, and attorney general were elected by the entire
