

SENIORS ENJOY CLASS PICNIC AT TUSCARORA

Are you going swimming? "If you ask me, I think you'll just have to swim out there," mournfully sighs a senior. And it did look as if our Senior picnic on May 7 at Camp Tuscarora was going to be just another might-have-been. But it stopped raining, and we rolled into camp after one-half an hour's backseat driving plus two human stop lights in the front.

The very first thing we saw in the lake were those wicked looking senior boys just itching to duck the weaker sex. Ann, who by this time thinks she's old enough to take care of herself, boldly led the attack. In the run several times for our most dignified senior, this lady sedately walks across the slippery raft and presto—Ann isn't where she used to be.

The ladies and gents not affected by the water bug listened to Cedric's victrola what time somebody wasn't knocking the top down. Now the last thing you'd expect to hear on a picnic is—when do we eat, but you can depend on these seniors. One by one they all tried to pull the front door down, but I just laughed and laughed 'cause I knew all the time the front door was nailed up.

Around five o'clock we began watching the kitchen door like the stock market! At last! The drinks underwent wholesale murder. Dick shakes up a grape juice and then pulls the top off. Do you wonder he thought one of the Yellowstone Park geysers had been misplaced? A horn preluded out front had called the guests to their meal, Mr. Frank Garris' predominating.

After some unmistakably true imitations of members of our—ahem—faculty and student body by a few of our gifted seniors, after a few toasts and a real alumni organization, we all headed for the Cliffs. There was one young gentleman in our midst who had sworn off the use of bad language now and forever, amen. But these tantalizing bad influences did everything but step on him, and the strongest vernacular they could get was "mercy, mercy." They gave up in despair. On the way to the Cliffs—which wasn't the way at all, for we didn't know the way—we led a merry chase. James B. chases Archie but is left far in the rear only to find that he has on his emergency brake. Somebody forgot to take the cakes out of Jim's car, and he slows up and hands them out the window to anybody who'll take a chance on getting that near to him.

Having arrived at the Cliffs, Dick, Alvin, Hal, James N., and Willis proceed to do a Tarzan act by scaling the high cliff. Yeah, they all came out alive. Harry sees a snake in the water, and since he's writing on snakes he swims after it in order to climax either him or the essay. Tommy, Alvin, and Bayard took a dip too. I dropped Ikey's car keys down the door, and for fear of committing suicide I ran down the Cliff rather than jump off and left Jim to do the worrying. He got them out. Coming back Ikey would go fast then slow, stop, start, turn off the radio, and we'd find Bing anyhow. At last we arrived in town—just another bunch of lunatics.

PERTINENT FACTS ABOUT SUPPLEMENT

1. What is the purpose of the supplement?

The purpose is two-fold: First, to give an additional month of schooling to every child.

Second, to relieve the crowded conditions.

It will not raise teachers' salaries above state rating.

2. Is there a need?

By no stretch of the imagination can anyone honestly conceive of a school or an individual doing as much work in eight months as in nine. The results are evident. Many pupils continue to receive good grades, but these grades do not represent what they formerly represented. Like the dollar, they have been devaluated. An additional month is like an additional cultivation of a crop, it will add much more relatively than the initial cultivation. It is like the finishing touches added to any great work. Without them, the work is unfinished; with them, a masterpiece is developed.

A glance only is necessary to see the crowded conditions in the classrooms. In child life as in plant life, many are being crowded out and cannot receive the necessary sunshine and fresh air of individual attention. Mentally many are greatly undernourished.

The stretch-out system has been fully tried in the public school system. As in other businesses, it has proved bad. Not only do the operatives suffer, but in this case, the product, the children, suffer even more.

3. What will be the cost?

The maximum to be voted upon will be twenty-five cents on the one hundred dollar valuation. This does not mean that the maximum will be levied. The rate will be determined later in the summer when the budget is made up.

4. What will be the procedure?

First, all qualified voters in the Goldsboro Graded School District must register in the ward in which they live. This is a new registration. Even though you registered last month, you must register again in order to vote in this election.

Second, get your neighbors to register. You want well-informed neighbors and friends in order that your entire community may be a good place to live.

Third, on election day, vote for the supplement. If you do not vote, it will count against the supplement.

Fourth, see that your neighbor votes for the supplement.

Supt. City Schools.

Many Picnic Recently

Three sophomore home rooms and four Latin Clubs in addition to the seniors have been picnicing at Camp Tuscarora recently.

Freshman Latin Clubs were the first to go. Then the second period Latin II Club invited the third period Latin II Club for a picnic, which was held Friday afternoon, May 10. Miss Roark's home room accepted Miss Neely's home room's invitation for a picnic Thursday, May 9, following Miss Welborn's outing on May 8.

Coach Weil's Record-Breaking Track Team

Two Vocational Courses May Be Denied Next Year

The new state school law, recently passed by the North Carolina legislature, contains a clause that will definitely eliminate two vocational teachers in Goldsboro High School. This means, simply, that 292 students who have signed up for commercial work next year will be denied the privilege of continuing their courses in typing, bookkeeping, shorthand; that 175 students signed up for Home Economics (Cooking and Sewing) will be compelled to pursue the less practical courses offered because they will lack an instructor.

The supplement, on which the citizens of Goldsboro will vote June 14, will provide for the addition of necessary faculty members. Without the supplement, however, G. H. S. will positively lose two of its vocational teachers.

Williams, Sallye B. Privette, Annie Elizabeth Coward, Rosa Willis, Eleanor Taylor, Ann Dees, Dot Crawford, and Dot Ballard.

A busy newspaper office made the background for the presentation of the prophecy. Editor Arline Robertson was found very busy editing an alumni edition of her paper. Gum-chewing reporters brought in bits of information which she put together and thereby formed an almost accurate report of the life and occupation of the grads of '35.

Dorothy Hooks Honored

Dorothy Hooks, '32 graduate, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Troy Hooks, has been elected editor of the Techo Echo, the E. C. T. C. college paper. She has served as business manager for the past year. During her senior year in high school she was editor-in-chief of the HI NEWS.

High Point was first with 39 counters and Durham second with 35.

THANKS TO BILLY GRIFFIN

A saving of approximately twenty dollars was effected by the Senior Class on this issue of the HI NEWS by Billy Griffin, senior. Billy mounted the pictures that appear on pages 6 and 7, a job usually done by the engraver or printer.

The ovaling was done by Mr. Clement, and the lettering by a commercial artist.
