

DISC HITS

(By Leah Lloyd Rigbee)

Well, here I am again! Spring's really wonderful, isn't it? And so are the new records that are out. There are a whole heap of them. So—here we go.

Jimmy Dorsey has come out with a smoooooooooth recording of "There is No Greater Love" which is on its way up. The opposite side features "Heartaches" in the standard J. Dorsey arrangement.

Dennis Day, the boy with two radio shows, has waxed two new recordings, "How Are Things In Giocca Morra?" and "Mam'selle," a new hit. In case you're a Pied Piper fan you can get their recording of it.

Phil Harris has popularized "The Possum Song" and "Poppa Don't Preach To Me," which has been recorded by Judy Garland. These are catchy tunes which you'll like. Another one of those nonsensical but cute tunes is "Across the Alley From the Alamo." Stan Kenton has done a superb job on this disc. Woody Herman has made it also.

"Midnight Masquerade," a nice dreamy sort of song has been recorded by Alvino Rey and Eddie Howard. You can take your choice.

Jo Stafford's new recording, "A Sunday Kind of Love" is in the same old Stafford manner. That's right, it's good. "My Desire" is Margaret Whiting's offering. You'll like it too.

Something sort of different is Bob Hope's and Dorothy Lamour's recording of "My Favorite Brunette" from the picture of the same monicker. Another recording by them from the picture is "Beside You." Dottie and Bob do a little bit of adlibbing on the side and if you are fans of theirs, you'll love these recordings.

Benny Goodman has recorded two new lively tunes, "Moonfaced and Starry-eyed," and "Fine and Dandy." If you're in a blue mood listen to them for a while and they'll cheer you up.

"Speaking of Angels" is Elliot Lawrence's new recording. Just dedicate it to your girl if you're in trouble. She'll beam at you from then on.

The King Cole Trio's latest recording has a kind of confusing title but maybe you can figure it out. It's "Meet Me At No Special Place And I'll Be There At No Particular Time."

"The Brooklyn Bridge" and "I Believe" from Frank Sinatra's new picture "It Happened In Brooklyn" are tops and so are his recordings of them.

That winds it up for this issue but I'll be seein' y'all next time!!!

Style Wiles

Here I am back with Style Wiles but I'll be forced to say that it looks like styles are just standing still in G. H. S. Everyone is still wearing skirts with sweaters and big skirts. But these new blouses that Lou and Jewel are sporting around are awfully nice. The blue becomes both of you.

It's been so cold lately that all the gals have got out their nylons and are wearing them to school with socks. You can't blame us though 'cause they do keep our legs warm!!!!

I see Pate and Gerty have gone down to a shoe shop and bought them some new black and white saddle shoes. They are mighty pretty but they aren't the only ones that have dressed their feet up. Faye B. has some brand new white moccasins and they are really sharp!!

Usually my column is strictly about girls styles around school. But I've just got to say something about the way the boys are wearing their shirts buttoned up at the neck. I sure would like to know who started it and where he got his idea. Maybe out of some fashion magazine for boys!!

Gaynell really has a variety of kerchiefs. Every time you see her she has on a different one. They sure are pretty though!!!!

Gee!!! I sure will be glad when spring gets here. So we all can

Homework Brings Plenty of Groans

(By Connie Johnson)

Groan, groan, ugh. No, I'm not dying. I'm getting ready to do my life's night work (homework, worse luck). I'm being forced to do it. You know, the teachers have been taking up homework lately. (Wonder why?)

Well, anyway, I ought to be able to do it tonight. I'm all alone because all the family has gone out. I guess I'll turn on the radio for company. Oh! What's that? "The Inner Sanctum." Just the thing for me to listen to.

Let's see. How many atoms in a molecule? How many molecules in the compound?

What's that? Somebody on the porch? Maybe I'll go look. No, I'm scared to open the door. No, it's just the wind. (I tell myself.)

Well, to get on with the homework. Oh! but this program's too good to miss. I'll do my chemistry later. Gee! There go the noises again. What are they? They sound like they're in the house now. Maybe I'll pick my feet off the floor and put them in the chair.

I ought to get my other book but I can't go in the other room alone. Anyway, I don't want to miss the "Inner Sanctum."

Oh, well, that's the end of the program. (I'm glad of that.) I guess I'll get my chemistry in the morning so I'll go on with English.

Bang! Bang! Golly, now, that is somebody at the door. As I fearfully put my feet back on the floor and creep to the door I hear my family say, "I wonder where she is?" With a sigh of relief I open the door and almost fall on them in my joy to see them.

They look at the clock and say, "My goodness, but it's late. You go to bed."

"But my work."

"Now!" Well, now, if the teachers read this, they'll know why so many of us don't have all our homework always.

Writing Is Hard For Lazy Folks

(By Lois Pearce)

Ever walk by the door of the Journalism class at fifth period and hear the groans and grumbles over the effort to get an editorial, feature, or news story down on paper so that the editors (Bless 'em) will let it stay instead of crossing it out?

Especially during the two weeks after the paper is distributed, the days when all the poor journalism students are wracking their brains for ideas to amuse their readers. It usually takes about three days to discover an interesting topic and then it takes another week to think of something interesting to say on it.

Well, walk by that way some day when you get the chance, and you'll surely learn to appreciate the effort behind all the nonsense which somehow gets printed..

Sophomores Give Easter Program

"King of the Jews," an Easter program, was presented by the sophomore class on April 3.

The program was in the form of a radio play, and dealt with the crucifixion of Jesus.

Participating in the program were: Jerry Sanford, Calaphas; Patsy Donnell, Adina; Troy Pate, us; Ethel Parks, Tumah; Sonny Malchus; Alvin Joyner, Nicodem-Gainey; Jubal; Peggy Ann Robbins, Reba; Will Bass, Roman Captain; Ned Champion, announcer.

Spring Fever Strikes GHS, But Hard!

(By Marilyn Tolochko)

Have you noticed those dreamy looks on the students' faces? Have you noticed them gazing out of windows during class instead of at their text books?

These are only a couple of symptoms of the disease that's going around school. It seems to be highly contagious, too. Why, we've even noticed that some of the teachers seem to have a slight case of it. What's the name of this disease? Well, most people call it spring fever.

Spring fever is the excuse students give for not having their homework and for not helping with chores around the house. Spring fever is what people attribute their feelings of laziness and dreaminess to. I guess I ought to know.

But I had better stop writing this. My pencil keeps slipping out of my hand, my head keeps nodding, and anyhow, I'm just not in the mood. What's the matter with me? Oh, I guess it's just spring fever.

Junior Class Buys Piano For School

The junior class of GHS recently purchased a Schubert piano.

The piano was bought because the students felt there was a great need for it in the school. This new piano will be kept in the auditorium, thus enabling the light weight piano to be moved when necessary. The cost of the piano was $150.

The Boy Friend

(By Erlene Griffin)

Drip, drip, drip, drip. But that is not the rain. It's just my boy friend, Bill Who has come to call again. After draping himself gracefully on ma's very best chair— He takes off his tie and shoes And spends the evening there.

Mother Is Rescuer of Small Baby

(By Nance Potts)

As I was walking down the street on Monday, I saw a little kitten stranded in the middle of John Street. A great big mean-looking dog advanced toward him. The kitten was too young to know to be afraid of the dog, so he just stayed there. The dog kept drawing nearer and nearer and as he finally got near enough to snap, he began growling. The kitten must have realized his danger, for he uttered a pitiful cry. I started toward the dog and kitten, but before I could reach them, a bundle of horrified mother rushed by. She was not much larger than her son, but she really put that dog to shame. She scratched and clawed and bit and the dog went running down the street with his tail between his legs. I sighed a sigh of relief and went my way, too.
