

Mrs. Cox's Room Leads Polio Drive

The total amount of money turned in by the whole school for the Infantile Paralysis Drive was $130.86. Out of the two weeks that the drive lasted, Mrs. Cox's room collected more money than any other home room. They had a total of $20.00. Mr. Britton came in second place and Miss Ipock third.

The goal for the school was not reached during the week of the drive, so it was extended for another five days.

Chest X-rays—

Transportation to the department was made in the high school bus and Mr. C. W. Twiford, principal, did the driving.

The local health authorities urged every high school student to take this X-ray for three reasons, as follows: If tuberculosis is found at an early stage it can be easily cured; if a person has the disease it must be stopped immediately or it will spread throughout the community; the fact that the X-ray was offered at a lower cost than could be given if a doctor gave the lung check.

Chemistry Laboratory Smells To High Heaven

Gasp! Cough! Sputter! Groan! Don't get alarmed! It isn't a hydrogen bomb. It's only chemistry (which, incidentally, might turn out to be even more dangerous to GHS'ers). Could be because it's closer and more liable to get us before the H-bomb is completed.

If you happen to have a poor friend who owns a good supply of gas masks, give him the tip and his fortune is as good as made. Any GHS student who wouldn't take one off his hands at a right reasonable rate just hasn't been in or around school lately. That's plain to see. No one could struggle through a week of hydrogen sulfide, another of chlorine, bromine, iodine and florine, and still not sigh for the pleasure of breathing pure oxygen, even through a gas mask. Anything to draw a breath again!

In case you aren't too familiar with the above mentioned substances, don't feel lonesome or individual. Neither are the chemistry students (from the voice of experience). They probably can't tell you where something is found, how it's used or what it looks like, but I bet one out of ten can guess what a substance is after just one whiff. Some things are never to be forgotten! If you think you'd forget those smells in a short period of time, just try spending an hour in the chemistry lab with one of
