

Pleasant Memories Make Seniors Think Of Near Graduation

The time is quickly drawing near when the class of '50 will be leaving the halls of Goldsboro High forever. No longer will we hurry to classes just before the last bell rings and no longer will we look eagerly to the holidays. Some of these faces we will never see again, but many memories will go with us never to be forgotten.

There were the football games at which we almost hollered ourselves hoarse and which gave us some exciting and thrilling moments, the band, which lifted our heads very high and made us feel mighty proud, the different clubs to which if we belonged, was a high honor. There were the Freshman weeks which had their hilarious moments, but we'll remember our own initiation longer. The most memorable day, Class Day, was one of the happiest and most enjoyable.

Other events that took place during our four years in High School were the Junior-Senior, the trip to E.C.T.C., the home-room weiner roasts, the trips to Washington, New York, and Williamsburg, all the socials, and many, many other wonderful, never-to-be-forgotten memories.

Graduation is just around the corner and we must strive to do our best even until the very last day before those dreaded examinations.

With our hopes high for the future and our ability and perseverance, we should be able to accomplish many things.

Honor Value System Is Under Consideration

Goldsboro students and faculty members are now studying an Honor Value System with a view to adopting it for Goldsboro High if they think well of it.

After a thorough discussion of the system on Wednesday afternoon, teachers suggested it be presented to the students for their approval or disapproval.

There has been a feeling for sometime that certain students are overloaded with extra-curricular activities; and it is believed that a system such as that suggested will encourage more students to participate in activities, thus lightening the load on a few who do so much of the work.

Honor Value System

The objective of the honor value system is to guide and stimulate student participation in school activities.

Regulations for the honor value system:

1. The honor value system shall be under the supervision of a council, elected at the beginning of each school year, composed of four faculty members, elected by the student council; four students, elected by the faculty; and the principal.

2. When a student holds an office or membership, or participates in an activity, he automatically drops these values when his term of office expires, when he withdraws membership from an organization, or when the activity ceases. He may then take other offices or memberships or participate in other activities until he has the maximum number of values.

3. The maximum number of values at any one time shall not exceed sixteen.

4. A student must have and maintain a 3 average to carry more than twelve honor values.

5. A student may petition the honor value system council concerning regulations of the honor value system.

6. A club recognizing students who have accepted responsibilities earning a minimum of 80 honor values by participating in at least 3 different activities shall be organized. These honor values shall be totaled at the end of each semester.

7. The honor value council

The Goldsboro High School Tennis team ended their current season undefeated by defeating a strong team from Charles L. Coon of Wilson 8 to 1. The unblemished record was the third straight for the Quakes.

This was the Earthquakes' first victory of the season over the Cyclones. The Quakes, victorious in their seven AA matches, have victories over Wilmington twice, Rocky Mount twice, Raleigh twice and Wilson once. The second match with Wilson was cancelled.

The charges of Coach Norris Jeffrey also defeated State College's freshman team by the score of 7 to 2. In a return match the same freshman team gained revenge by dumping the Quakes by an identical score. In two other meets this year the locals were overpowered by a strong freshman squad from Carolina. The Wilson match marked the end of three straight seasons without a defeat for the Earthquake tennis team in AA competition.

Summary of Rocky Mount match:

Singles

Mike Hadge defeated Bud Wallace, 6-1, 6-4.

Edward Caviness defeated John Moore, 6-4, 6-3.
