

Proud Eleventh Graders Select New Class Officers

The opening of the 1971-1972 school year signaled the beginning of new changes, such as a new administration, shorter school days, and last but by no means least, new class officers.

The class of '73 in particular feels that its class is led by four of the best officers which have ever graced the halls of RMSH, and although their installation was somewhat late, they still hold high expectations for their class.

President Alfred Davis holds the lead office, and the calling of class meetings, as well as initiating class projects are just a few of the responsibilities that fall in his hands. This hard-working junior is the son of the Reverend and Mrs. Frank Davis.

Alfred's back-up is the Vice President, who this semester is Ray Brinn, the son of Mr. and Mrs. R.T. Brinn. This industrious young man was the only candidate to petition for his office and be successful last year. He will be the President's "right hand man."

Secretarial duties will be accepted by Ginger Arnold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Arnold, keeping minutes as well as giving support to class projects of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Arnold. Keeping minutes as well as giving support to class projects will occupy the majority of her time.

The Class of '73's financial situation will be carefully controlled by Treasurer Jim Harris, son of Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Harris. He holds a most important office, since the Junior class must prepare for the Junior-Senior. Therefore, Jim felt it was imperative that the magazine campaign went well.

The first item on the agenda of class business was the magazine campaign. These officers made a circuit of the Junior homerooms, urging students to sell their magazines, and bring their money. President Alfred Davis has had minor problems finding time for his co-workers to meet. This is not surprising, since these officers are also active outside of school. The next project will be raising spirits and floats for Homecoming. This is a seemingly monumental task, but with a slate of officers like the Class of 1973 has, it is certain great things will be accomplished.

Active Students Selected As Unique Rotary Couple

The month of October is almost over, but who makes up the Rotary Couple for this month? Two very industrious and friendly RMSH students, Carolyn Bishop and Richard Bulluck, are this month's Rotary Couple.

CAROLYN BISHOP

Carolyn Bishop, described in one sentence, has all the qualities one would want to find in another person. She is versatile, friendly, and involved in all that is happening around her. One might often see her rushing through the halls to beat the bells to her classes.

Being so active, she has hardly any spare time of her own. Besides being president of the Booster Club, and secretary of the Student Organization, she is an active member of the First Baptist Church, Senior Debs, and Senior Girl Scouts. Bike riding, sewing, and going to the beach are her main interests.

Carolyn's reaction to her honor was, "I don't believe it!" She feels that this school year is one in which there is not much time for extra-curricular activities. Commenting on the administration, she feels that it has listened to the students and has done a lot of good for the school. Carolyn also feels that if RMSH students showed more school spirit, that we would have a greater school.

After graduation, Carolyn hopes to attend Wake Forest

University or St. Mary's College.

RICKY BULLUCK

Richard Bulluck is an inquisitive young guy who is naturally friendly to everyone. He is well-known by everyone as president of the Student Organization and as a truly great person. His briefcase is his trademark.

Leading such a busy schedule, Richard still has time for fun and jokes. He is a member of the Booster Club, has been on the Varsity Basketball and Baseball teams, and is in the band. To no one's surprise, his one and only hobby is anticipating and predicting the reaction of girls--called "girl study".

Richard was elated by his honor. When asked for an overall comment, he dwelt on his job as president of the Student Organization. "Although it is sometimes frustrating, I like my work. It presents many "once in a lifetime" opportunities. I come in contact with more people than probably anyone in Senior High." Richard also feels that the students should become more involved with school happenings and show more school spirit.

After graduation, Richard hopes to attend U.N.C.-Chapel Hill. But, jokingly, five-foot, ten-inch Bulluck might "go to U.C.L.A. if it offers me a basketball scholarship."

Congratulations to two great people!

RMSH Students Battle To Receive Halloween Prizes

As Halloween rolls around again this year RMSH students prepare to spend a sleepless night in the pumpkin patch. Linus and his friend Charley Brown invite all those interested in receiving their Halloween gifts from The Great Pumpkin. Although, through the past years, the Great Pumpkin has not visited this pumpkin patch, Linus is very hopeful that he will come this year. Among the gifts the Great Pumpkin will give this year are the usual candies and toys for the kiddies and for all those who have been good this year. There will be a special prize awarded this year to the most typical sophomore costume! Of course Linus feels that he will receive the prize for being such a devoted believer.

There is going to be lots of competition this year for RMSH students. They must prepare for the shock of the super sophs! Among their selection of costumes this year is the traditional ghostly ghost costume, complete with sheet and assorted masks, the wicked witch costume complete with four in the floor magical broom. One new and exciting costume image for the sophomore boys in the pinching pink, bouncing, Bobby Sherman. For the girls we have the delightful costume of Shirley Temple.

Witchcraft Ideas Bring Questions To Many Minds

Thanks to the television media, witches have become, shall we say, popular. But the programs depict witches falsely. There are good witches, and there are bad witches. But there are no witches who wiggle their noses to achieve the desired index fingers and shoot lightning. Not wanting to sound ridiculous, but being a witch is serious business! If you aren't born into a family of witches and taught witchcraft from the time you're born, you have to go through some very drastic measures to become one.

The image of old, ugly witches slumped over a giant brewing kettle, stirring the "potion" with a large stick, and throwing in bat's wings, frog eyes, and "purple, tow-eyed, no-nosed nothings" is absolutely a myth, and no more. First, witches aren't ugly old hags with warts on their noses. Second, stirring anything with a stick is unsanitary. And third, bat's wings, frog eyes, and nothings have no hexing powers at all!
