

The Full Moon

Volume 21 ALBEMARLE, N. C., MARCH 5, 1943 No. 5

Here and There

LAURA ROSE MOORE is one of our kindest belles and there will not be more "Leap Years".
She was overheard saying seriously:
"It's my last chance—my very last chance!"
"What's your last chance?" she was asked.
"Band practice. I am the only girl and there are about twenty boys!"

SHOE RATIONING certainly has had "quicker" effects on some folks.

Kitty Doby was heard to say, "I have to wash my feet every night and, boy! do I dread it!"
When students reported to the dormitories after the Inter-mural basketball game on Friday, Ezra Oglesby was absent, but the little girl that had been crying around all day was there and someone knowingly remarked, "Ezra is here."
Nevertheless it was only the black one.

MRS. FRY was telling her senior English class as an assignment to write friendly letters to someone in the service every month for the rest of the year.
Robert Martin, a little puzzled as to someone to write, asked, "Won't the WAAC's be all right?"

MR. MCPADYEN called to the auditorium all boys who would be seventeen or older by the end of school.
Terre Moore and Sam Lamar, reporting they were the right age, went, but were sent back.
Mrs. Fry, seeing Verne, asked, "Boch, who has been observing comely?"
"Yep, too old," was his reply.

IT SEEMS that Mrs. Jennings' husband is an inventor.
Miss Barefoot asked Betty Cooper who invented the cotton gin.
She absently mumbled replied, "Edward Jennings."

CRAIG IVEY was running Richard Stoker around the gym the other day and they both seemed very much fagged out.
"Boch," remarked, "There goes Smoker vs. Smoker."

"Well, I DON'T" gues Miss ams is Miss Laws any more," remarked a student when he heard about her marriage.

"No," replied his companion, "I we'll have to say Mrs. Laws now."

MRS. FRY, "Donald, my haven't you copied these sentences from your English book as I asked?"
"Donald H.," "I just don't like to say somebody else's work."

THERE WAS a disturbance in the back of the room, and Mr. Hat-asked "What is the whole matter with you, Lowder?"
Yawning and stretching, Harry alied, "Somebody woke me up!"

News Briefs

The kitchen to the school cafeteria has recently been repainted, and color selected this time was tan.

Mr. Grigg has spent several days Raleigh this week in the interval of the school education bill now before the legislature.

"Gerónimo," a Paramount picture, was shown to the student body on February 24. The next movie coming to A. H. S. will be "The Sign of the Cross" to be shown March 25. These movies sponsored by the Student Council.

"Dance Music," school reporter to "Steady Nerve and Prejudice" has taken 715 news of notes for that year.

Leading Roles Taken By Stone, Eury In Play

Ford and Hurlocker Have Supporting Parts.

"My Late Espoused Saint," by Frank Durham, this year's contest play, starring Craig Eury and Carolyn Stone with Marie Hurlocker and Everett Ford, will be presented in the State Dramatic Contest at Chapel Hill in March, Miss Fitzgerald announced today.

Craig Eury plays the part of Ambrose Dargan, a violent temper, "hull in a china shop" type of person who comes back to life one year after his death.

Carolyn Stone plays Phie Dargan, Ambrose's mild-tempered, mild-mannered, order-loving wife, who is scared to death of her husband.

Marie Hurlocker plays Essie Carraway, Phie's friend, who, like Phie, married a college professor, and who, however, is an absent-minded as the proverbial absent-minded professor.

Everett Ford plays Ebbe, the Dargan's colored gardener, who most interestingly signs his own name "Ebenezer Assurance" more or less of key.

The consensus of the cast's opinion of the play is that while it has its comical side, it is chiefly a drama. "My Late Espoused Saint" was first presented at Dock Street Theatre, Charleston, S. C., and kept the audience in suspense even after the play was over.
Work on the play was under way for two weeks now, and reports indicate that someone in Chapel Hill is going to have a hard time overcoming the actors and actresses from A. H. S.

Mr. Hatley Teaches Pre-Flight Course

The pre-flight course, being taught by Mr. Hatley, is preparing the boys for future training in order to enter the broad field of aviation—fighter-pilot, bombardier, navigator, or ground-crewman.

The class, consisting of twenty-five boys, is now studying different facts about meteorology—clouds, atmospheric conditions, precipitation, and reading of weather maps.

Later, as Mr. Hatley states, they intend to concentrate their studies on the elements of flight and "what keeps it up there." Only eleven and twelfth grade students are eligible, because they are the ones who will most likely serve in the present war.

Soles On Feet Were Made Before Soles On Shoes; Why Worry About Rationing

A. H. S. students as well as other people State, are now being rationed will have a serious effect on them; however, they are ready, willing, and able to take the boys on the front by buying only three pairs of shoes a year until the shoe service is reformed, which has recently come into effect.

Many will have to agree with Calvin, the janitor, who says it's gonna affect him pretty bad, but the boys will make it through, which has recently come into effect.

A group of Junior and Senior girls drill three times a week under the direction of Miss Holt and Mrs. Fry as part of the school's Victory program.

Rembert Rogers Will Attend West Point

Rembert Rogers, last year's graduate, who recently received an appointment to West Point, stood his physical exam yesterday, but word has not been received as to the result.
This year, a freshman at Duke, having received a scholarship to that university.
In high school Rembert was active in all sports, in dramatics, and in music; and he several times was elected to offices in his class and in Hi-Y.

Martha Ivey Is New Treasurer

Martha Ivey, a senior this year, has been recently chosen as treasurer of the student body, replacing Sherrill Cranford, who left school to attend the University of North Carolina.

During her four years in high school Martha has received many honors. She is a National Honor society member, vice president of the Booster's club, and was lieutenant-governor of Girls' State last year, an organization sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary.

Defense Classes Prepared For Japs

All Nazis and Japs better "look out" for Albemarle High School's pre-flight and sheet-metal students, who are being trained in special classes recently organized for boys who are planning to enter the field of aviators or civilian defense work in a factory.

In the sheet-metal classes, there are eight students in the morning class and seven in the afternoon. The boys are being trained by Mr. Ed Burleson for future work in a defense factory.

To be qualified for a defense job it is necessary to have had at least 250 training hours.

Most of the boys are not certain where they will cast their lots concerning war-plants, but "Lige" Hatley and Earl Hagans are definitely planning to enter the Glen L. Martin aircraft factory at Baltimore, Maryland.

All of the boys like the course and are doing their best to present a satisfying record of themselves during the class. Even "Puny" Lowder is working. In fact "Puny" always has his certain project perfect—at least perfect except for one little detail. Every time "Puny" comes running up to Mr. Burleson (Continued on Page Three)

Quartet Gives Gay 90's Revue

Choral Groups Plan Chapel Concert For Friday.

If you should happen to see a group of boys walking down the hall decked out in Gay Nineties costumes, complete with hair part in the middle, elegantly waxed handle-bar mustaches, and spats in fact, everything that goes with that era, don't take a B. C. or pinch yourself, or look at the calendar. You're awake and not seeing things, and this is 1943.

The spectacle is a contingent of the boys' quartet, who sang last Friday at the Rotary Club banquet and will sing tonight at the Lions Club banquet.

Mr. Fry's boys' quartet is at it again. These boys, to the best of their ability, are trying to awaken the atmosphere of the Gay Nineties.

Incidentally, this same skit is to be given along with the Concert which is scheduled to appear here in the auditorium next Friday.

The concert, directed by Mr. Fry, will be divided into three parts, the first of which will be a group of Church Music. This, of course, will show the more serious feeling of the concert. This will consist of from eight to ten songs.

Part two, in a much brighter vein, will feature the Gay Nineties Revue, which will be put on by the Boys' Quartet and will feature a lot of singing.

The purpose of part two is to show the song and dance atmosphere of the period known as the "Gay Nineties."

The third and final part of this concert will be a group of spirituals, consisting of several Negro spirituals.

The concert as a whole will be presented by the Mixed Chorus.

The Girls' Ensemble has been chosen to sing the hymns at the First Presbyterian Church Sunday, February 20.

These girls are very much in demand, many people and organizations calling on them and on the boys' quartet for programs.

31 New Books Are Added to Library

Thirty-one new books have been recently added to the high school library.

Two of the books which may be of help to students in their future careers are Radio From Start to Finish by H. J. Brown and Do You Want to Be a Nurse by Sutherland.

Some of the new novels are Hill Country by Jack London, The Red Rover by Rex, Mystery of the Empty Room, Seaman, Quintle River, Peasants, Inside Out, Mallett, Quintle Contrary, Urmston, Bread and Butter, Hall, Freighter, Brace, Wagoner, Crawford, They Loved to Laugh, Worthy, Traylor, Tru, Jacob, Worthy Foster, Saleman, by Ferris.

Two of the books, I Saw the Fall of the Pharaohs by Tomolo and The Courage and the Glory by Flaherty, deal with the war.

By Their Words

"As long as the temperature stays what it is, it's going to be like this," said a student.

"Now is the time for all Pee Dee suckers to come to the aid of their country," said Ted Fry.

"I wasn't over nineteen when I finished high school, and I'm still a senior," said a student.

"Success is not given away. You must strive to achieve it," Mr. Lowder said.

"Driving a car with one hand is all right, but just try driving a car with one hand!" "Glamor Boy."

"Every time I open my mouth I hear four feet of mud," said Leola P.

opinion mildly in saying, "I can't say anything except I won't get but two pairs of shoes this year because I had to use one of my stamps to buy a pair of tennis shoes, which I decided badly."

Merle H. "Now, listen, I don't wanna be quoted on what I think about the rationing," Frances E. quite concerned about the whole thing, exclaims, "I guess this is what you call a 'ban on pleasure walking'."

Maybe you boys will agree with Harold P. "My brogans will last a long time." After a while, Eunice S. said, "My opinion is endorsed."

Paul W. might be healthier to think my thoughts to myself."

We can all be patriotic by making small sacrifices, and as Mrs. Fry says, "I think we can all get along all right with three pairs a year if we buy sensible and keep in mind the fact that three pairs is the limit."
