

The Full Moon

ALBEMARLE, N. C., OCTOBER 5, 1945

No. 1

Volume 24

Here and There

MISS HOLBROOK CALLED her roll of twelfth graders regularly twice a day at the beginning of school, and twice a day she called "Lake" Little. Finally one day she asked, "What is your real name?" "My name's Bathtub," responded Labe, "but they call me Lake for short."

MR. McFADYEN HANDED a tardy slip to Bobby Beal, who complained that he had just walked in the door when the tardy bell rang. "Let me give you some advice," said Mr. Mac. "Walk in just before it rings!"

WHEN THE STORM WAS RAGING through here a couple of weeks ago, Hinky Turner entered the Chemistry class and asked Mr. Hatley if he had heard over the radio that the storm was coming this way. "Mercy!" exclaimed Mr. Hatley. "I didn't need a radio to tell me that."

THE SOUND OF A FIRE WHISTLE was heard in Miss Rogers' room. Miss Rogers: "Does anyone know where the fire is?"

Someone from the back of the room: "Forest Hills, I believe." Gene Whitlock, alarmed: "Oh, I hope it's not my place!"

MRS. WILLIAMS: "In India they don't wash their babies till they are old enough to wash themselves." Charles Morris: "B. O. Plenty."

MAX FESPERMAN: "Harrogate, what do you do on left formation?" Harrogate: "Which side of the field is that?"

IN FIRST PERIOD BOOK-KEEPING CLASS Sept. 21, Miss Rogers asked if anyone didn't have his homework. Labe Little replied: "Yes."

Miss Rogers: "Why don't you have your homework?" Labe: "Why waste time getting homework? Today is the end of time."

FRIDAY AT DINNER the football squad was lying in the sun behind the new gym when someone suggested skipping school to enjoy a movie. At first no one took him seriously, but at last he had most of the team following him.

When they had been in the show for about twenty minutes, the mother of one of the boys came down the aisle, confronted the group, and spread the news around that they were wanted back at school. This sudden act came as a complete surprise to the boys, for they had thought they had committed the perfect crime.

Back at school, the boys returned to their classes with a tardy slip. Yet all the trouble wasn't over, as they found when they got home after school. Their mothers had heard.

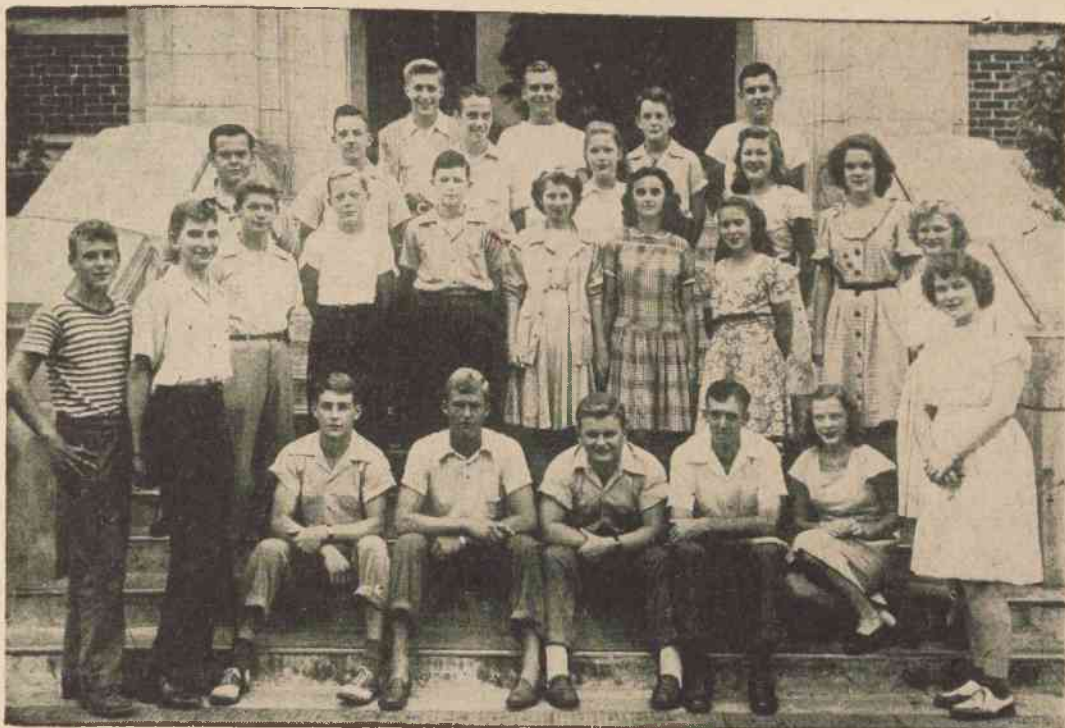

Crime doesn't pay. MR. MAC GAVE quite a few tardy slips the first day the buses

A group of boys got on the bus behind the school building for a free ride as promised. The driver told them they could get back in time for school.

They went to Five Points, to the Square, West End, Yadkin Hospital, back across the Charlotte Road and the Concord road, by Edri school, back to the Square, to East Albemarle school, then to the High School.

To their dismay, their sightseeing tour had been stretched too far. The bell for classes had rung twenty minutes before they arrived.

MR. HATLEY WAS explaining the Chemistry class about their water on them, it will wet them every time.

STUDENT COUNCIL—Seated: Don Knotts, treasurer; Cecil Milton, vice president; Jack Harris, president; Mr. McFadyen, adviser; Marian Sifford, secretary. First row: Bobby Patterson, Lewis Gaskin, Buddy Lowder, James Gulledege, Charles Reap, Mary Anna Peck, Doris Barnes, Connie McLain. Second row: C. B. Cranford, Henry Forrest, Max Bogle, Mary Louise Elder, Miriam Whitley, Betty McAdams, Peggy Moorehead, Lou Merle Griffin. Back row: Richard Crisco, Charles Morris, William Grigg, Lloyd Barringer.

Paul Fry Doing Organizational Job For N.C.E.A.

Paul Fry is acting as supplementary Field Secretary of the North Carolina Education association in the organization's drive to get work for the year started in various local units throughout the state, and is spending this week and part of next in this work.

Mr. Fry, with 30 other volunteers, received special instruction in this field at the headquarters building of the N.C.E.A. in Raleigh September 4 and 5.

The first county unit meeting that he attended was held at the Hugh Morson high school in Raleigh September 29, when he talked to teachers from Wake County. Monday of this week, he met with the Cumberland County unit in Fayetteville, and on successive days with groups in Harnett, Johnson, and Chatham Counties.

Mr. Fry served as president of the local N.C.E.A. unit last year.

STUDENTS RIDE BUSES

Many high school students are riding the new buses to and from school these days.

The bus schedules are so arranged that buses get their riders to school in time for the first bell and are waiting to pick them up again when school is out.

Special rates are offered school children during these hours.

Election Starts Year's Work

News Briefs

Jack Harris, president of the student body is to preside over all chapel meetings this year rather than Mr. McFadyen.

Seven rooms, 76, 75, 74, 55, 48, 84, and 85, have had their desks sanded and revarnished. The school bought a portable sander, which was to be here during the summer vacation but was delayed. Four rooms were finished before school started and the other three were completed on Saturdays.

The schedule of holidays for this year has been announced: two days for Thanksgiving, two weeks for Christmas (which includes three week-ends), one day each for Good Friday and Easter Monday.

There are 640 students enrolled in the high school this year, 318 boys and 322 girls. There are 22 teachers, counting Mr. McFadyen.

An average of 250 people eat lunch in the cafeteria each day, according to Mrs. C. M. Griffin, the new manager, who is replacing Mrs. Fesperman this year. In order to handle this crowd, eighth graders are dismissed for lunch at 11:45 and are served and out of the cafeteria before the upper classmen come down.

Council Representatives Are Chosen By Home Rooms

Homeroom representatives for the student council were elected last week. They are as follows:

Eighth grade: Mrs. Ivey's homeroom, James Gulledege; Mrs. Hinson's homeroom, William Grigg; Miss Berrier's homeroom, Connie McLain; Mrs. Saunders' homeroom, Doris Barnes, Miss Reece's homeroom, Henry Forrest.

Ninth grade: Miss Michael's homeroom, Mary Anna Peck; Miss Peebles' homeroom, Mary Louise Elder; Mrs. Fry's homeroom, Bobby Patterson; Miss Warren's homeroom, Richard Crisco; Mr. Hatley's homeroom, Lewis Gaskin.

Tenth grade: Miss Lutterloh's homeroom, Lou Merle Griffin; Miss Caughman's homeroom, Buddy Lowder; Miss Fulcher's homeroom, Miriam Whitley; Miss Beaver's homeroom, Charles Reap; Miss Gantt's homeroom, Lloyd Barringer.

Eleventh grade: Miss Rogers' homeroom, Peggy Moorehead; Mr. Fry's homeroom, Charles Morris; Mrs. Harris' homeroom, Max Bogle; Mrs. Williams' homeroom, C. B. Cranford.

Twelfth grade: Miss Holbrook's homeroom, Betty McAdams.

Seven New Teachers Agree In Liking Music, Sports, Movies And . . . Food

A. H. S. boasts this year of seven new teachers, two of whom are hometown girls and one from Badin.

Mrs. Hinson, who recently moved here, graduated from Appalachian State Teachers College. She likes chicken, the semi-classical music sung by Bing Crosby and Deanna Durbin. Mrs. Hinson also revealed that she has a passion for cooking and singing, after she corrects her eighth grade class papers.

Mrs. Saunders is an old friend to most of us, as she has taught in Central Elementary school. Her southern drawl tells us she graduated from the University of Georgia. Movies, especially Gary Cooper movies, and semi-classical music are about all she has time for after her five and one-half hours in her eighth grade classroom. At meal time she prefers fried chicken.

Miss Reece, another eighth grade teacher, who hails from Yadkinville, graduated from Mars Hill Junior College and Woman's College. She could spend a life-time walking, listening to classical and semi-classical music, or eating oysters. Van Johnson and Greer Garson rank first with her when it comes to movie stars.

Miss Gantt is on the beam when it comes to music, as she prefers jazz. She comes from Kings Mountain, where they cook good fried chicken and lemon pie. She graduated from Western Carolina Teachers College. She will probably be seen at the bowling alley after gym classes.

Miss Lutterloh, the new Home Economics teacher comes from Pittsboro and Woman's College.

Her likes range from T-bone steak to Greer Garson, Fred McMurray, and Gregory Peck. She spent her vacation working, riding horses, and at the beach. Anything from Boogie to Bach is right up her alley.

Miss Beaver, another hometown girl, graduated from Duke. When meal time comes, she will take steak. She undoubtedly saw "Thrill of a Romance", because she chose Esther Williams and Van Johnson as her favorite movie stars. During her spare time she would like to play tennis and listen to music.

Miss Holbrook, the traveler from Traphill, is the new librarian. She could eat strawberry shortcake and listen to semi-classical music sung by Jeanette McDonald and Nelson Eddy for a lifetime. Miss Holbrook graduated from W. C. U. N. C.

Homerooms Elect Officers For Year

Homeroom officers for the year have been elected. They are as follows:

Eighth grade: Mrs. Ivey's homeroom—president, Clegg Herin; vice president, Jean Bullock; secretary, Carolyn Poplin; treasurer, Norma Efrid.

Mrs. Hinson's homeroom—president, John Helms; vice president, Jimmy Kelly; secretary, Alice Hudson; treasurer, Elizabeth Starr.

Miss Berrier's homeroom—president, Cranford Hathcock; secretary and treasurer, Lauretta Plyler.

Mrs. Saunders' homeroom—president, Larry Smith; vice president, Fred Braswell; secretary, Hattie Tucker.

Ninth grade: Miss Michael's homeroom—president, Ernest Burleson; vice president, Marion Sifford; secretary and treasurer, David Gaddy.

Miss Peebles' homeroom—president, Nancy Priestner; vice president, Hoyt Long; secretary, Charles Ross; treasurer, Ted Rummage.

Mrs. Fry's homeroom—president, Marlene Lowder; secretary and treasurer, Elizabeth Miller.

Miss Warren's homeroom—president, Violet Melton; vice president, Madeline Hathcock; secretary, Francine Howard.

Tenth grade: Miss Lutterloh's homeroom—president, Frank Winecoff; vice president, George Winecoff; secretary and treasurer, Jessie Morton.

Miss Caughman's homeroom—president, Louise Poplin.

Miss Beaver's homeroom—president, Howard Page; vice president, Jeanette Wilhelm; secretary and treasurer, Gene Brooks.

Miss Gantt's homeroom—president, Nancy Glover; vice president, Madge Harris; secretary and treasurer, Robbie Thompson.

Eleventh grade: Miss Rogers' homeroom—president, Gene Whitlock; vice president, Leonard Gibson; secretary, Susie Morgan; treasurer, Carolene Efrid.

Mr. Fry's homeroom—president, Bobby Gene Owens; vice president, Mildred Mullis; secretary, Claudine Crisco; treasurer, Johnny Andrew.

Mrs. Harris' homeroom—president, Donald McLain; secretary and treasurer, Rose Hartsell.

Mrs. Williams' homeroom—president, C. B. Smith; secretary and treasurer, Sarah Lawhon.

Twelfth grade: Miss Holbrook's homeroom—president, Johnny Gaskin; vice president, Brady Lowder; secretary and treasurer, Ruby Morton.

By Their Words

One man's secret of success—"Get up when you wake up and wake up when you get up!"—Rev. Brendall.

"This pencil won't spell right."—Paul Russell.

"Does anybody have a homework paper they aren't using?"—Tom Hinson.

"Look at all those A's beside my name." (Absent)—Gene Harrington.

Mr. Hatley (warning Chemistry class not to break test tubes): "If something catches on fire, just stand there and hold it; don't throw it down."

"I want five periods of physical ed."—Johnny Andrew.

"A hatter is a person who cleans hats."—George Ray Turner.

"Live and move on a grand scale."—Rev. Brendall.

"The U. S. didn't stop growing till I was born."—Mr. McFadyen.

"You might think I'm bragging and you might not think I'm bragging, but I am."—Mr. Hatley.

"Sometimes things aren't as funny as they seem."—Miss Caughman.

"Even if you live in Porters, singing will enrich your life."—Mr. Fry.

"Water makes me thirsty."—Betty Anderson.

"Look how my foot has faded on my shoe!"—Peggy Moorehead.