Teachers Attend Summer Sessions

Teachers have to go to summer school, too, although not for the same reason that most students do.

The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, N. C. was fortunate this summer in having Miss Mildred Kyser, who was re-newing her teaching certificate, Miss Inez Bankett, working on the master's degree; and Mr. J. L. Cashwell, who took a course in reading to help those students who are poor in reading. These three were there six weeks each.

If you've been wondering how Miss Michael could take over the library work so quickly, here's her secret: She went to U.N.C. for a six weeks course in library science.

Mr. R. C. Hatley went again this year to Duke University to help in a short course there.

Also to Duke went Mr. Claud Grigg, who attended the Cen-tennial Celebration of Teachers Training. He had a part on the program, entitled "The Role of the Private College and University in the Placement of the Teacher in the Public School".

Probably the most interesting excursion was Mr. Fry's. He at-tended Fred Waring's workshop held at Pennsylvania State Col-lege. He went there with ap-proximately 300 teachers and musicians from all over the U.S. These teachers spent five days working with Waring and his staff. Fred Waring methods and interpretations were studied by the teachers and they sang all of his music published within the last year.

Student Lion for the month of September was David Bruton, and the Student Rotarian was James Gibson.

Young Scientists Have Fair Booths

Pulleys and inclined planes from the science department, plus fungus gardens and man-made spider webs from the bi-ology department, with a fine dis-play on health foods for A.H.S. did the school proud at the coun-ty fair week before last.

Most important was the prize winning booth, "Design For Bet-ter Living", made jointly by the Badin and A.H.S. home economics departments. It featured a rotat-ing windmill with pictures of a basic food on each blade. Samples of meals planned from these foods also were on display. Mrs. Coble stated that one group plan-ned the booth and another group did the actual work. The in-dustrial arts class helped with the motor for the windmill.

Mrs. Lyke's biology classes had a living room scene on one side of their booth. It had curtains with leaf stencils, a coffee table with a glass aquarium used as a leg, and various plants used to make a pleasing room. The other side of the booth contained ter-rariums and insect and animal displays such as a fish skeleton and clay models. One outstand-ing piece of work was a hand-made spider web of white nylon thread against a black back-ground, made by Louvene Mor-ton.

The science department had some fine examples of simple machines such as the wheel and axle, the lever and pulleys. Post-ers explaining these machines lined the booth and it made an eye catching spot.

Freshmen Line Up All-Male Officers

Wade Smith was elected presi-dent of the freshman class at the first freshman class meet-ing held this year. Elected to serve as vice president was Charles Smith.

Other officers chosen were Ed-shay Brunson, secretary, and Gene Lundsford, treasurer.

Bill Robinette was elected sponsor of the class.

Class Of '52 Represented Well In Colleges Of South

Approximately 50 out of 100 seniors that graduated last year are now enrolled in various col-leges, universities, or business schools.

Henry Carpenter, Joe Gaskin, and Jimmy Skidmore are mak-ing their homes at the University of North Carolina, while Jimmy Brown, Jimmy Austin, Keith Byrd, Hamilton Morton and David Plowman are becoming acquainted with North Carolina State.

Woman's College of the Uni-versity of North Carolina is the most popular school among the girls, especially with Betty Lynn Crowell, Nancy Austin, Patsy Williford, and Jean Barringer, who are taking a one-year com-mercial course, while Emily Mil-ton, Virginia Helms, Lewis Klutz, Sue Redfern, Nancy Jo Haynes, and Patsy Pettit have decided to stay four years.

Ann Reeder Daniel and Doug Knotts have chosen Duke to con-tinue their education, while Gene Honeycutt and Kenneth Russell are enrolled at Wake Forest.

Those attending Catawba are Betty Sue Rogers, Roger Morris, Bruce Lowder, and Leslie Swan-ner.

Meredith, Peace, and Salem got Catherine Atkins, Sylvia Morrow, and Betty Brunson, respectively. Lees McRae is the choice of Jane Russell and Jo Ann Griffin.

Paula Howard is to be found at Gardner-Webb, and Carolyn Jones at Eastern Carolina Teach-er's College.

Joe Clayton and Junior Josey will be seen on the campus of Pfeiffer Junior College.

Wingate Junior College was chosen by J. H. Calloway. Laura Mae Plyler is making her home at Paradise Valley Hospital and Sanatorium. Jean Taylor and Doris Rogers are receiving their training at Presbyterian Hospital School of Nursing.

Various business schools are attended by James Lisk, Helen Luther, Audrey Burris, Nancy Yow, Nancy Morrow and Virginia Hollingsworth.

Katherine Kimery, Carrie Mae Russell, Ruth Clark, Janet Helms, Mickey Morton, and Angeline Hopkins proved that marriage was their line. Marjorie Stutts Lefeavers, Marlene Harrington Honeycutt, and Hilda Poplin Scarboro took the fatal step be-fore school ended last year.

The rest of the students chose the business field as their voca-tion. Most of the Diversified Oc-cupations students are giving full time to the jobs they had last year.

Yow Is Elected To Head Juniors

Larry Yow was elected presi-dent of the junior class at a class meeting recently held in the high school cafeteria.

Larry Talbert was elected vice president, while Lydia Hall will be the new secretary.

Due to lack of time, class spon-sor was not elected. At another junior class meeting, Victor Dry was elected treasurer.
